REFUSE TO DINE WITH PERSHING

Prominent Men Construe Dinner to General by City as Political Move

The projected dinner to General John J. Pershing by the city of Boston today was construed as a clever political move in the campaign to boom him for President.

This was said to have been responsible for the refusal on the part of a number of prominent men, who have no affiliation with the Y. D., to accept invitations.

Among these were several regular army officers, who declared that because of the political flavor of the dinner they were glad that they could be absent on other engagements.

DECLINES INVITATION.

One officer, an overseas veteran, now serving in this section, said today on receiving an invitation from Mayor Peters:

"I cannot accept this invitation because there is too much of a political flavor to the visit of General Pershing. Citizens seem to be handling the entire affair. Army officers have really been ignored for the sake of what seems to be a Pershing boom for President.

"I have tried to look at this differently, but fellow officers have expressed themselves in the same way. I am glad that I shall not be in Boston in the day of the dinner."

Secretary E. V. R. Parke, at the Mayor's office, stated that there have been comparatively fewer refusals for

TWO MEN CAUGHT IN ICE DRIFT SAVED

Buzzards Bay, Feb. 21.—Although fatigued from assisting the crew of the government tug Lykens to get the boat off Quick's Hole, Captain Ed Lombard of the Cuttyhunk lifesaving station and his crew rescued two men, who were drifting in the ice pack in their small boat. Isaiah Wilson and Louis Abrams, Cuttyhunk fishermen, were returning from New Bedford with coal, when they were caught in the drift ice. Captain Lombard saw their distress signals.

REPORT FEWER CASES OF INFLUENZA HERE

A continued decrease of influenza in Boston and a slight increase in the remainder of the State was reported to the State Department of Health. Boston reported only fifty-eight cases for the past twenty-four hours and all other parts of the State reporting 616 cases. Lowell had forty-seven new cases, Lynn forty, Worcester thirty-nine, Cambridge thirty-four, and Clinton thirty-one.

On account of the observance of Washington's birthday on Monday, Feb. 23, all regular editions of the Boston American will be omitted on that date.

Wilson's Secret Deal Verified, Says Senator

Washington, Feb. 21.—"President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George of England had a secret agreement relative to the disposition of the former German ships," Senator Brandegee, Republican, of Connecticut, declared in the Senate today, commenting on the reply yesterday of the President to the Senate resolution.

"The reply of the President verifies the report I had relative to the secret agreement," Brandegee said.

Brandegee said he could not understand why the President should hold the agreement with England until the peace treaty had been disposed of.

"The agreement provides for the turning over of all money for the sale of these vessels to the reparation commission or payment for them by the United States if they are not sold," Brandegee declared.

"I compliment the President for his frankness, laying the facts before the Senate," Brandegee said.

SEES NO RELIEF IN COAL FAMINE

Situation Growing Worse, Says Statement by Wholesale Dealers

The most serious coal shortage of the Winter is in immediate prospect, according to a statement issued by the New England Wholesale Coal Association. Factories and private concerns of all sorts may be forced to close for lack of fuel, and a situation of the greatest gravity created.

"In the judgment of the directors of the New England Wholesale Coal Association," reads the announcement, "the soft coal situation in New England today is worse than it has been at any time this Winter. So far no emergency boat coal has arrived for distribution to factories, and the public utilities and hospitals are in such bad shape that it is not likely that any of this coal brought up by vessels can be distributed to factories or other domestic consumers during the next week or ten days."

Five steamships with coal cargoes aggregating 13,378 tons, arrived in Boston today. Three others, bringing 14,000 tons, are expected in tonight or early tomorrow.

The comparatively heavy shipments were taken to forecast still bigger consignments for New England in the next few days, now that freight embargoes have been lifted.

RIGID CONTROL OF PACKERS PLANNED

Washington, Feb. 21.—The packing industry of the United States is placed on practically the same footing as public utilities by the terms of the combined Kendrick-Kenyon control bills reported to the Senate from the Senate Agricultural Committee, members of the committee said today in speaking of their plans to push the measure through Congress.

The bill would establish a license system to control the packing industry and it is placed under rigid government regulations.

2 RIOT VERDICTS AGAINST CITY

First Suits in Police Strike Are Heard; Appeal Goes to Full Bench

Two verdicts were rendered against the City of Boston in Municipal Court, in the first damage suits growing out of the destruction of private property during the police strike.

Corporation Counsel Hill took exceptions for the city on points of law, and the entire matter will be taken before the Supreme Court full bench.

The verdicts are taken to constitute a precedent under which all claiming loss because of the inability of the city to protect property may recover.

The plaintiffs were Albert Yalenzian, a tailor at No. 131 Dartmouth street, and Sylvester J. McBride and others of the State executive committee of the Socialist party of Massachusetts, with quarters at No. 12 Park square.

Yalenzian sued for $362.25 and was awarded $271.68.

The Socialists sued for $1,500 and were awarded $543.91.

Commerce Committee Advocates Retention as Part of U. S. Merchant Marine

Washington, Feb. 21.—The Senate Commerce Committee went on record today as opposing the sale of the thirty former German passenger ships the Shipping Board attempted to auction off for $28,000,000 and as advocating their retention as an important part of the American merchant marine.

In a report submitted to the Senate this afternoon by Senator Jones, Republican, of Washington, chairman of the committee, it was emphasized that "these ships are urgently needed in our foreign business."

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Justice Bailey of the District of Columbia Supreme Court today fixed a $10,000 bond for William Randolph Hearst in the injunction proceedings against the United States Shipping Board and its officers, enjoining them from selling the thirty German liners seized during the war, as indemnity for any loss due or wrong accruing to the government from the writ.

Assistant Attorney-General Amos, for the government, had asked that the court fix the bond at $5,000,000.

BLACKLIST OF LODGE BY LABOR

A. F. of L. Includes Senator and Gillett Among Leaders With "Black" Records

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Six Senators are tied for first place on the American Federation of Labor's Congressional blacklist, it was learned today. These are Smoot, of Utah; Myers, of Montana; Sherman, of Illinois; Thomas, of Colorado; Cummins, of Iowa, and Underwood, of Alabama.

These men lead the list of those who will be bitterly opposed at the polls by the American Federation of Labor.

These Senators, along with Pomerene of Ohio, King of Utah, Phipps of Colorado, Lodge of Massachusetts and Penrose of Pennsylvania, who are out up for re-election, have the "blackest" anti-labor records in the Senate, Federation officials announced.

Cummins was regarded as a friend of labor until he introduced the anti-strike bill. The measure has "spread-eagled" his record sufficiently, in the opinion of the campaign committee, to class him with such opponents of labor as Penrose and Smoot.

Senator Underwood of Alabama had a "pretty fair" record when he was a member of the House, labor leaders state, but his vote for anti-strike legislation and his statement that he

CAILLAUX TAKES UP CHARGES IN DETAIL

Paris, Feb. 21.—Former Premier Joseph Caillaux, on trial on the charge of holding treasonable dealings with the enemy, will continue his "explanation of defence" when the case is resumed on Tuesday before the Senate. M. Caillaux is taking up the detailed charges of the prosecution, explaining his dealings with persons in Europe and South America, who were alleged to be involved in a cabal to bring about a dishonorable and premature peace.

STATE STREET FIRE CAUSES $2,000 LOSS

Fire in the basement of an eleven-story office building at No. 27 State street early today caused a damage estimated at $2,000. Elwood Keefe, night watchman of the building, discovered the flames while making his rounds. When the apparatus arrived the heat had become so intense that the metal sidewalk covers over the chutes had buckled several inches.

Clew to Slayer of Springfield Girl

Springfield, Feb. 21.—An almost complete description of a suspect who, it is thought, may have committed the brutal attack on twelve-year-old Virginia Walker, which resulted in her death, was received by the police today.

The description was furnished by a young woman who volunteered the information that she had been similarly attacked in a vacant house on Traiton road several weeks ago.

Because of the similarity of methods employed, and the fact that both victims were throttled into submission after their faces had been scratched, the police believe that the same man was the assailant.

The possibility of making an arrest was said to have been increased by the discovery that the Walker girl had been dead two or three hours when her body was found shortly after midnight.

The form of the schoolgirl was found, wrapped in a horse blanket and covered with bruises, in the rear of the Somers Creamery on Dickinson street.

The tragedy occurred when the Chicago, Feb. 21.—For the first time in years, Paul Riese, formerly known as "Chicago's fattest musician," saw his feet today while standing up and possessed a lap while sitting down. He left the American Hospital following a successful operation whereby Dr. Max Thorek, Chicago surgeon, removed 109 pounds of fat from his stomach. He formerly weighed 400 pounds.

SAVES WOMAN FROM INJURY

Court Officer Hill Rescues Miss Wilson From in Front of Car

Habits of quick thinking and action, acquired in years of service as traffic officer, at the busy corner of Tremont and Winter streets, enabled William G. Hill to save Miss Anna Wilson of No. 11 Spaulding street from injury.

A crowd of men and women bound for the business section were standing on an ice-covered snow bank at Hamilton street and Columbus ave., when Miss Wilson, who was one of them, slipped on the icy surface, just as the oncoming car was within a few yards of the corner. She fell down the snow bank, and, according to eye witnesses, her feet were less than an inch from the wheels of the car when, with the rest of the group watching, dumfounded, Hill stepped from the crowd, seized the woman and drew her to safety.

Hill is now a court officer in municipal court. He was a member of the police Police Department for eighteen years. He holds a medal for bravery.

650 ILLEGITIMATE BIRTHS IN YEAR

"There were within the last twelve months 650 illegitimate births in Boston," according to Dr. Walter L. Kellogg of the staff of the Florence Crittenton Hospital. BOGUS MORTGAGES MADE BY WARREN

Joseph Franklin Warren, fugitive Boston lawyer, forged the name of William T. A. Fitzgerald, register of deed for Suffolk County, in securing fraudulent sums estimated at between $100,000 and $200,000 it was learned today.

Warren also used an imitation registry of deeds stamp, differing from the legitimate only that it bore a wavy border line in place of the straight line which appears on the other.

$300 in Bills Found by an Honest Boy

John Murray of No. 835 Saratoga street, lost his pocketbook containing three $100 bills and valuable papers.

An honest boy from East Boston, who escaped before his name could be learned, found the purse in a car-bound for Jeffrey's Point. He took it home to his mother. They believed the bills to be counterfeit and took them to a bank.

Murray advertised his loss and the boy, accompanied by his mother, returned the money. The boy refused the $100 offered as a reward, but under pressure of Murray, he accepted $25, which will cover one month's rent of his home.

Bailey, the counsel for the Shipping Board today stated that there had been any regular advertising of the seized ships and the entire cost in obtaining the bids on the ships was small for advertising in the shipping interests.

Counsel for the Shipping Board to defer the signing of the order of attunities until Tuesday to give the defendants' counsel an opportunity to confer over the order as agreed by Justice Bailey.

MAY SIGN ORDER TUESDAY.

The order which Justice Bailey is expected to sign on Tuesday is as follows:

"Upon consideration of the bill of complaint herein and the rule to show cause issued thereon, and the admission by the defendants in open court of the facts alleged in said bill of complaint for the purposes of the application for injunction pendente lite, and it appearing to the court that the defendants, John Barton Payne, Thomas A. Scott, John A. McDonald and Raymond B. Stevens, commissioners, composing the United States Shipping Board and the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation, a corporation, are without the power to sell the ships mentioned and described in paragraph 4 of the bill of complaint, which it is alleged by the defendants that they intended to sell, it is by the court this second day of February, 1920,

Hearing was set on signing of the order for Tuesday morning.

VOTE ON STRIKE IN SALEM

Salem, Feb. 21.—Today the vote on the question of striking was begun by the members of MacInnirs' Union 344, of whom 4,200 are employed at the United Shoe Machinery Company here.

The voting continues until midnight and a two-thirds vote is necessary to declare a strike.

If the strike is voted no action will be taken until the meeting of the general executive board of the Machinists' Association is received from Washington. International President William H. Johnston is expected here a few days.

No question of wages or hours is involved in the strike. The whole clamor is against the system of fostering contracts inaugurated by the company, which has the individual men and corporations to sign a stipulated sum for a period of one year. Other grievances are dwelling regardless of what action the union may take.

Business Agent Ambrose A. Mahoney told 3,400 members of the union last night that the series of meetings which are to be held over three weeks between union and company officials had been barren of result.

2,000,000 GALLONS OF WATER WASTED

Lawrence, Feb. 21.—The water department estimates that about 2,000,000 gallons have been wasted in this city thus far this winter. As a result of the severe cold and the increasing cost of maintaining the department many will be obliged to pay the water bills.

"In many cases people who have been paying dollars will be called upon to pay hundreds," states the head of the water department. The normal supply of the city, which is now depending on the auxiliary supply of North Andover to tide over a shortage, is set at 4,000,000 gallons.

American Is Eagerly Read in Ireland

The Boston American has enjoyed a limited but impressive circulation in Ireland, according to Rev. James Healy of Ardfert, County Kerry, who has just arrived from Erin and is staying with an uncle in Jamaica Plain while on his way to a mission in Sacramento, Cal.

"I have had the Boston American with gratifying regularity during the past eighteen months in Ireland," Father Healy said. SAYS ROADS FACE BIG PROBLEMS

Hardest in Changed Relations of Employes, Declares James H. Hustis

New York, Feb. 21.—New problems confronting the railroads on their return to private management March 1 were discussed by President James H. Hustis of the Boston & Maine Railroad before the New York Railroad Club.

Conditions are greatly changed, Mr. Hustis declared, and the situation confronting private management, he said, is different from that it is entirely different from what it was before the war. One of the chief problems, he declared, was the altered relation between management and employes.

He admitted that organization leaders had declared the employes generally to be in favor of government ownership of the roads, and quoted Judge Charles A. Prouty, director of valuation for the Interstate Commerce Commission, as saying that he favored public ownership.

Many (shifting from bolleve such a step would me most unwise," said the speaker, "and in the latter class are those who now favor it, and would imperil our system of private ownership.

Continuing, Mr. Hustis said: "If the demand for transportation continues on its present scale, the task of producing it satisfactory will be almost one. In addition we must expect that the public will be more exacting in the future than it has been to a higher standard of service."

child was sent for a jar of cream by her mother, Mrs. Gordon J. Walker, who lay ill of influenza at their home. The child was found lifeless at about 8:50, Mrs. Walker asked Virginia to go to the Somers Creamery, about a quarter of a mile from their home. The child at first protested against going out, but eventually agreed.

She failed to return, and an hour or more later, when Mr. Thayer reached home, a search for her was searched for her. At the creamery he was told that the girl had not been seen, and a general search of the premises, a theatre a mile away was visited, without success.

Wrapped in a coarse blanket, the girl lay. There were marks on her throat, scratches on her face, and her clothing was torn, indicating that the child had fought her attacker for some time before being overcome.

The police rushed to the Thayer home and a physician summoned, but the girl was dead.

SCHOOLBOYS CLEAN LAWRENCE GUTTERS

Lawrence, Feb. 21.—Following the suggestion of their school principal, John J. Higgins, 77 boys of the Bigon School set to work cleaning the gutters of snow and ice here. They were armed with shovels and picks supplied by the city and accomplished more in a day than had been done by contingents of city laborers engaged in the same work.

was really responsible for the anti-strike legislation and his vote here will make him one of the group of candidates against whom the Federation is planning to fight with all its might at the polls.

TWO PRESIDENTIAL ASPIRANTS.

Senator Harding of Ohio and Senator Poindexter of Washington, Presidential candidates, are on the blacklist, as is Senator Gilbert Hitchcock of Nebraska.

Others on the senatorial side of the list are McCormick of Illinois, Knox of Pennsylvania, Moses of New Hampshire, Nelson of Minnesota, New of Indiana, Watson of Indiana, Randell of Louisiana, Robinson of Arkansas, Elkins of West Virginia, Edge and Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, Spencer of Missouri, Wadsworth of New York, Kellogg of Minnesota, Hale of Maine, Jones of Washington, McLean of Connecticut, McCumber of North Dakota, Brandegee of Connecticut, Curtis of Kansas, Colt of Rhode Island, Walsh of Montana and Warren of Wyoming.

All voted for the anti-strike bill.

On the House side the blackest marks are against the names of Blanton of Texas, "Uncle Joe" Cannon of Illinois, representative Esch of Wisconsin and Nicholas Longworth of Ohio.

GILLETT IN THE LIST.

Gillett is on the list because of his recent remarks against the federation. Representatives Graham and Davey are there because of their anti-sedition bills. Representatives Gus Gardy and Will Valle of Colorado are others on the list.

Attorney-General Palmer has the "blackest" record on the presidential list as he now stands, labor officials said.

If the charge that Herbert Hoover is for anti-strike courts is found to be true, he will go down on the list. Senator Borah will "blacklist" him whether or not he is omitted from the Federation's list, because of his advocacy of private ownership of the railroads.

McAdoo, Cox of Ohio, Lowden of Illinois, and Senator Hiram Johnson have the best labor records among the presidential candidates, according to the Federation.

There is nothing in General Wood's record to stand actively against labor, but the fact that he is a military man and stands for universal military training places him among the "blacklisted."

Railway Unions Appeal to Wilson for Tribunal

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Representatives of railway workers called at the White House today and left a message for President Wilson, urging that he take steps to immediately create a labor tribunal which he has proposed to the workers to adjust their wage demands, declaring that the proposed legislation before Congress is wholly inadequate for fair adjustment of labor controversies.

Bert Jewell, head of the railway department of the American Federation of Labor; Timothy Shea, head of the Brotherhood of Railway Firemen, and E. J. Manion, head of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, conferred with Secretary Tumulty on the matter.

National wage agreements entered into between the railroad administration and the railroad workers will be kept in force after the return of the roads to their owners, Director-General Hines announced today. The machinery to enforce the wage agreements and to adjust wage questions will be kept intact, Hines stated.

Mr. Hines asserted that railroad boards of adjustment Nos. 1, 2 and 3 will continue to receive and hear questions which would ordinarily come to them for settlement under existing wage agreements, and in accordance with previous general orders affecting vital matters arising under Federal control.

Incidental to this policy, Mr. Hines announced the discontinuance on March 1 of the division of operation and of labor of the railroad administration.

C. H. Tyler, director of operations, has been elected vice-president of the Northern Pacific Railroad, and W. G. Carter, director of labor, will resume his duties as president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers.

Soviet Offers Peace to Whole World

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND,
Boston American Staff Correspondent.
Special Radio Dispatch.

Berlin, Feb. 21.—Soviet Russia is planning no military offensive against Poland, Rumania or any other country. Her main wish is to live in peace with all the world and to establish healthy, normal trade conditions with Europe and America. She is ready to pay for the things she needs, not only with gold, but with raw materials.

Nicolai Lenine, the Bolshevist premier, makes these statements in a long wireless communication to me, in answer to a series of direct questions I put to him in a radio message. The important lengthy message I have just received from him amounts, therefore, to a "wireless interview," unique in the annals of journalism.

When it reached Scandau I am sending this by wireless—it will have made an aerial journey of nearly five thousand miles. It is the first direct, unqualified statement from the Bolshevist premier to reach the American public.

Mr. Lenine makes the flat prediction that the future belongs to the Soviet system all over the world, but denied that the Soviet government intends to bring this about by force of arms, declaring no aggressive action is planned against other countries in any direction.

NOT TO ATTACK POLAND.

The Bolshevik chieftain's message to me follows, in full:

"Moscow, Feb. 18.

"Wiegand, Universal Service, Berlin:

"The war intend to attack Poland and Rumania? No. We have declared here emphatically and loudly, in the name of the Council of the People's Commissaries and the All-Russian Central Executive Committee, our peaceful intentions.

"It is very much to be regretted that the French capitalistic government is instigating Poland (and probably Rumania, too) to attack us. This is even mentioned by a number of American radios from Lyons.

"You ask about our plans in Asia. They are the same as in Europe—peaceful, neighborly life with all peoples, with the workers and peasants of all nations awakening to a new life—a life without exploiters, without panhandlers, without capitalists, without merchants.

"My answer is, 'Let the American capitalists leave us alone. We shall not touch them.'

"What are the obstacles to peace between Russia and America?' you ask.

"None on our part; imperialism on the part of the Americans as of the other nations' capitalists.

WELCOMES U. S. "REDS."

"As to our view of the deportation of Russian revolutionists from America, we have received them. We are not afraid of revolutionists here in this country.

"Has Russia yet to fear a counter-revolution from without? Unfortunately, it has, because the capitalists are stupid, greedy people. They made a series of stupid, greedy attempts at intervention that one has to fear repetitions until the workers and peasants of each country thoroughly re-educate their capitalists.

"Is Russia ready to enter business relations with America? Of course, it is ready to do so, not only with America but with every other country.

this dinner than for other city functions. Invitations were said to be on the way to several prominent Y. D. officers who have announced that they will refuse to attend.

COLE "WONT ACCEPT."

These were sent to Colonel Edward L. Logan, former commander of the American Legion; Major Thomas J. Foley of Worcester, and Colonel Cole of William J. Keville of Belmont, Brigadier-General Charles H. Cole of Worcester, Major Henry H. Sisk of Boston.

Colonel Logan refused to commit himself, but Colonel Keville and Major Foley have declared that they will decline the invitation. General Cole is quoted as saying: "I won't accept unless I'm asked formally."

General Sherburne stated that any action by the part of Massachusetts Legioners against General Pershing should be hidden during his visit. This attitude also was take by Colonel John F. J. Herbert of Worcester, first head of the State department of the Legion, who resigned to become a candidate for Lieutenant-Governor.

General Pershing comes here as a representative of the War Department," said he. "This is no time for members of the Legion to show any personal animosity."

Secretary Parks stated that 298 invitations have been sent out, and more than 190 requests filed. He admitted that four more declination notes were received at the Mayor's office today, but said none came from Legion officers. Requests for the 125 who have thus far replied to their invitations have declined.

BUT ONE CLINTON CAR LINE IS OPEN

Clinton, Feb. 21.—Discouraged over failure of repeated attempts to open its line between this town and Worcester, a distance of thirteen miles, the Worcester Consolidated Street Railway Company today declared that it let the rails of Spring do the job. Since February 2 not a car has been operated over the line. The company made no attempt to open the line from this town to Clinton. The only line operated out of this town is through Lancaster to Leominster, nine miles.

TWO CALL NOTES FORGERIES

Evidence on Handwriting Now Before Court Trying Burke for Murder

Skowhegan, Me., Feb. 21.—Christie F. Hoyle, manager of the Moose River House, of which Thomas H. Burke was proprietor, declared on the stand today at the trial of the latter, now held by John A. Burke, accused of Burke's murder, were evidently forgeries. His was the first evidence in a handwriting battle which promises to feature the trial.

Experts have been called by both sides. The government contends that Burke killed Bartley after forging his name on several notes.

William Toulouse, teller of the Kennebec Trust Company, Bartley's banking house, also declared that the signatures appeared to be forgeries.

Hoyle also gave evidence sustaining the government's claim that Burke and Bartley were partners in whiskey smuggling over the Canadian border. He told of liquor being brought to the Moose River House in cases and stored about the hotel and in the stable.

WIDELY-KNOWN LYNN REPUBLICAN DEAD

Josiah C. Bennett, a widely known Lynn Republican and one of the most highly respected citizens of that city, is dead at his home, No. 7 Mason street, of a rheumatic ailment. He was a familiar sight on the streets, always wearing a silk hat and a Prince Albert coat.

"PEP" COMMITTEE IS ESTABLISHED AT B. U.

A "pep" committee, believed to be the only one of its kind in New England colleges, has been established by the juniors of the Boston University Department of Religious Education. Miss Lucy Bellis, Miss Laura Armstrong and Miss Ruth Nuzum form the committee.

CAMBRIDGE WOMAN CHARGES DESERTION

Mrs. Barbara H. Gilbert of Cambridge has filed a suit for divorce against her husband, Arthur H. Gilbert. They were married in Cambridge March 25, 1909. She alleges non-support and desertion on January 3, 1916.

BIG IRISH DRIVE IS UNDER WAY

Enthusiasm Marks the Opening of Liberty Bond Sale in Boston

Intense enthusiasm marked the opening in Boston today of the Irish liberty bond certificate drive. Thousands of inquiries as to where the bonds might be bought poured into headquarters at the American House. Workers gathered there for a final series of conferences expressed confidence that the city would go over its apportionment of $500,000 long before next Saturday night.

While the drive was formally opened today, the actual work of collection will not begin until tomorrow. A house-to-house canvass is to be conducted, the general committee working through ward and precinct organizations. Irish associations will take part in the drive as such.

Liberty bond certificates may be purchased in amounts ranging from $10 to $1,000.

There will be a big meeting in Deacon Hall at No. 1455 Washington street, Roxbury, this afternoon, when the drive will really get underway. This meeting will be addressed by H. L. Eddy, State director, and others. The central Labor Union and the Counties Association of Boston will be present.

There will be other rallies in Hyde Park and other sections of the greater city.

A mass meeting of the Friends of Ireland is to be held in the Mechanics Building in the Olympia Theatre, Monday afternoon, and admission to which will be free. Thomas M. Nolan will preside. Speakers will be the Rev. Father P. Murray, secretary of the First Methodist Church of New York; Edward F. McSweeney of Boston, and Thomas F. Phelan of Roxbury. Michael Kelley has prepared a musical program of rare merit.

GIVE CONCERT PROGRAM.

The affair will be held under the direction of the Somerville Branch of the Friends of Irish Freedom, of which Thomas M. Nolan is president; the Eighteenth ward committee of the city in charge of the Irish bond certificate drive and other guests will occupy seats on the stage, as will former Alderman John J. McCarthy, treasurer of the Somerville Irish Freedom Fund. More than $5,000 was raised in Somerville at the Armistice victory fund and it is expected that a larger amount will be collected this time.

Thomas O'Dowd, author of Irish ballads, will sing several songs, as will John Brady, tenor. John J. Sheerin and Miss Catherine Linnehan, group of twenty-five women members of the Somerville branch, will be arrayed in green, white and gold, the colors. Doors will open at 7 o'clock.

"Self-Determination for Ireland," will be the subject of an address delivered today by the Rev. Patrick J. Healy, D. D., of the Catholic University of Washington before the Catholic Club of Lowell and the Fenway Academy of Notre Dame.

COHALAN TO LECTURE.

On Sunday afternoon, February 29, Judge Daniel F. Cohalan of New York will deliver a lecture on the Irish question in Boston. Tickets will soon be secured at the Catholic circulating libraries. The committee having charge of arrangements, assisted by Owen Gallagher, M. J. Slattery, Joseph C. Lynch, James McGlough, James Reagan, Henry L. Weiser, James F. Sullivan, Bartholomew Long, John J. Connolly and Thomas F. Foley.

Owen Roe O'Neil Branch of the Friends of Irish Freedom will be represented at the meeting, in the interests of the Ward 18 committee.

The postponed meeting of the John Mitchel Branch of the Friends of Irish Freedom will be held in Mishawum Hall, Charlestown, this evening. Rev. Maurice F. Murphy, a Methodist minister of New York, will be the principal speaker.

$20,000 DAMAGE AS MENDON ROOFS FALL

Mendon, Feb. 21—Two unoccupied buildings at the Lake Nipsuic Summer colony here have been destroyed today by the collapse of the roofs under the weight of snow. The damage was $20,000. One of the buildings, owned by Daniel H. Barnes, was operated during the Summer as a bowling alley. The other, owned by Mrs. Nellie Bellis, was a skating rink. A $1,000 organ in the skating rink received damage, although debris fell on all sides.

CHILDREN OF WEST END ENTERTAINED

Hundreds of West End children were entertained at a George Washington celebration at the Scollay Square Theatre, under the auspices of the Catholic Italian League and directed by Miss Theresa Bellis. The program included community singing, a film comedy, a Punch and Judy show and a collection to give similar programs for children of the congested districts. Subscriptions are to be sent to the Catholic Italian Civic League Children's Fund, Federal Trust Company, Boston 9.

LOWELL TABERNACLE DEDICATED TOMORROW

Lowell, Feb. 21—Practically every evangelical pastor and church in Lowell, and quite generally in the suburbs, has been co-operating effectively to the evangelistic campaign to be conducted by Rev. George T. Stephens and his five associates in the great Tabernacle. The dedication of the Tabernacle is at 3:30 p. m. tomorrow.

SUGGESTS LESS FEED FOR IDLE ANIMALS

Owners of horses are advised by the Boston Work-Horse Association to cut down on the quantity of grain given their animals tomorrow and Monday and feed them plenty of hay. A short walk both days is suggested because of the holidays.

I appeal to the members of Congress to use their influence with President Wilson to halt the proposed sale of thirty former German ships.

Further, I petition that there be a most thorough and full investigation of every important fact covering the proposed sale. This investigation should most thoroughly probe the report that the Shipping Board plans to sell these ships, including some of the largest and finest steamships afloat, for $28,000,000, which is declared to be but one-third of their real value.

I desire to ask why cannot the government itself operate these fine ships rather than sacrifice two-thirds of their value?

TWO INDICTED AS WHITE SLAVERS

Providence Men Charged With Transporting Girl to Wrentham Roadhouse

Providence, Feb. 21.—Charged with transporting Barbara Fiske, nineteen, to a roadhouse in Wrentham, Mass., Frank Cataldo, a chauffeur, was re-indicted, and Manuel Dutra was indicted by a Federal grand jury, following a jury disagreement at Cataldo's former trial about ten days ago.

At that time the jury was out eight hours, and was admonished by Judge Arthur L. Brown for not reaching a verdict. Gossip persisted that there would be a "plant" in the jury. The indictment of Dutra followed testimony by the Fiske girl that he was in the automobile which took her to Wrentham.

In both these three, according to testimony, was another girl named Jennie Ferguson, who is under indictment charged with testifying falsely. A prominent lawyer is also under indictment charged with having fixed Mrs. Ferguson girl to testify falsely.

The defense pleads that although the farm of the ...enham estate is in Massachusetts the house is in the town of Cumberland, R. I.

The trial is set for March 8, one thousand dollars bail was added to the $5,000 under which Cataldo was already held, and Dutra is held in $5,000.

MALDEN Y. M. H. A. TO HONOR MEMBERS

As an appreciation of their efforts in putting the membership drive over the top, the Malden Y. M. H. A. will honor several of its members at the third annual Dutch supper in the Malden Auditorium Sunday night. Mayor Kimball of Malden and Judge Lomer will address the gathering. The members to be honored are Nat Fisher, Paul Einer, Phil Freedman, Leo Newman, Mrs. W. Slobotkin and Miss Slindler.

FITCHBURG MAN SAFE AFTER PROVIDENCE FIRE

Fitchburg, Feb. 21.—Yalmar T. Hill, son of Mrs. Hannah Hill of No. 199 Lunenburg street, was found among those missing in the fire that gutted the Lorraine Hotel at Providence Wednesday night, but his mother has received a message from him stating that he fought his way out of the burning building and is safe.

All the assistance he can.

It is an established fact that at least one or two of those who suffered through Warren's manipulations were clients of Palmer.

SECURED CASH ON NOTES.

Evidence furnished the American today established that in addition to the transaction in which Gerrish and Mrs. Ehrman are concerned there were four others in which the supposedly fictitious clearances figured.

In those cases the Clymer Company, a novelty manufacturing concern, appears as the mortgagee while the mortgagors are either Adams, the Burrough's woman or Cronin.

Each of the four got $120 in two mortgage notes for $1,000 each from the Clymer Company. "Mary Burroughs" secured $4,240 from the same company on mortgage notes, one for $2,120 and the other for $1,892. "Cronier's" name appears on a mortgage note for $2,500 which Mrs. Ehrman advanced.

In addition it is thought that Mrs. Alice Swallow was victimized to the extent of $1,000 on a mortgage which was bogus. It has been admitted by counsel for Warren that the names used were supposedly fictitious.

Warren's whereabouts are unknown to the United States Army recruiting officers, formerly Assistant United States Attorney.

Fictitious Names Used by Warren to Raise Money on Notes, Is Claim possible form of man cursed himself and begged forgiveness. He declared, however, that his only wrong had been that in which the names of Captain Gerrish and Mrs. Ehrman figured.

ADMITTED FORGERY.

To Harvey he calmly admitted having forged Mrs. Ehrman's name to the mortgage note which he sold Captain Gerrish. When the Assistant District Attorney of Middlesex questioned him he volunteered to take a pen on Harvey's desk and demonstrate his ability as Jim the Penman.

Both friends assert that an accident in which Warren figured in 1914 may be the cause of his troubles, the attorneys working on the case do not think so. They claim that some of his transactions were started prior to that incident.

While trained investigators are seeking for further evidence of forgeries in the transactions of Warren, police officers throughout the United States and Canada are seeking the fugitive attorney at the behest of the Boston police. As yet no definite trace of him has been secured.

The deeper the investigators go into his real estate and business transactions the more convinced they are that Warren leaves behind him a tangle of figures which will require considerable work to straighten out.

It has been found that in big plan of action he used the names of three supposedly fictitious persons. By means of these names its charged that the surety attorney was able to secure thousands of dollars on bogus mortgages. And with these bogus mortgages he was able to raise yet other thousands by offering them as collateral for further loans.

HOW THE MONEY WENT.

Both these facts have been clearly established, at least in so far as the case of Captain Gerrish and Mrs. Ehrman are concerned. Several others were treated in like fashion, it is also asserted.

The mystery regarding the disposition Warren made of the sums he received through his alleg 4 illegal operations has cleared when it was found that for some time past he had been backing a concern which was attempting to secure a charter to engage in the China trade. This concern, according to reports, has now been organized and is ...w up to the present time.

It is understood that the concern intended to place on the market a ...ical preparation which could be operated more profitably than a gasoline one. It is also believed that Warren's interest in the concern ...mbles those of other sorts.

Following the exclusive announcement of Warren's flight in the Boston American today, there followed many actions in which he was involved were corrected by the attorneys and others working on the case. The use of the supposed fictitious persons also came to light.

USED NAME OF WOMAN.

The names used by Warren were of two men and one woman. Though a determined effort was made to locate "Arthur Adams," "Mary Burroughs" and "Samuel Cronin," they have not as yet been found. Nor can any trace be found of real estate owned by these people on which mortgages were placed through Warren.

Warren was associated with Edward H. Palmer in a suite of offices at No. 59 Chauncey street. His sudden disappearance and his alleged fraudulent actions have proven a rude shock to Palmer. Palmer in a letter has expressed a willingness to give information to the police which will aid the assistance he can.

It is an established fact that at least one or two of those who suffered through Warren's manipulations were clients of Palmer.

BARRING OF BIBLE LEADS VERMONT HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS TO STRIKE

PRINCIPAL QUITS HIS PLACE

Controversy at Brandon After Catholic Priest Protests Chapel Exercises

Brandon, Vt., Feb. 21.—Barring of the Bible from the routine of the Brandon High School and the refusal to allow chapel exercises to be held daily has precipitated a strike of 180 students and the resignation of Principal Walker.

The entire corps of teachers were going out, but they were prevailed upon by Supervisor of Schools Sturtevant to postpone their action.

OBEYED PRIEST'S PROTEST.

The controversy opened a week ago. Rev. E. P. Grew, rector of the Catholic church, it is claimed, requested that the reading of the Bible in the school be prohibited, after a conference with Bishop J. J. Rice of Burlington.

The School Board, Dr. J. W. Estabrook, F. H. Whalen and C. L. Clifford, at the priest's recommendation, ordered the chapel exercises suspended, Estabrook dissenting.

The order was obeyed for a few days. Last Wednesday, however, the exercises were renewed and the priest protested. Principal Walker immediately resigned, and the striking students have circulated a petition demanding his reinstatement.

CATHOLICS NEEDN'T ATTEND.

The school board has reconsidered the matter and now decides that the chapel exercises may be held and the Bible read, provided Catholic students are not compelled to attend. The striking students state they will return to their studies Monday.

Principal Walker will not return to the school unless he is given full control.

SHAWMUT COUNCIL TO FEAST CHILDREN

Shawmut Council, No. 170, K. of C., will celebrate Washington's Birthday on Monday afternoon in Norfolk Hall, Dorchester, by a children's party. Grand Knight James F. A total of $20,000 will be entrusted to a board of trustees, who will invest the money as they deem best.

PAPERS STOLEN, LINCOLN MAN'S NAME OFF BALLOT

Lincoln, Feb. 21.—The nomination papers of Amos B. Little, who is seeking re-election to the school committee, have been stolen from the store of Rollins Brothers, where they had been placed for the purpose of obtaining additional signatures. There is no legal way for Little to get his name on the ballot. The election takes place March 2.

SAVE INVALID IN FIRE WITH QUILT

Canterbury, Ct., Feb. 21.—Fire of unknown cause destroyed the home of Benjamin Davies in the west part of the town. When some one outside shouted "Fire!" the family were awakened, and escaped in their night clothes. An invalid woman was lowered to the ground in a bed quilt. The loss is about $8,000; partly insured.

TWO ARE SAVED FROM DEATH AT MANCHESTER

Manchester, N. H., Feb. 21.—An employe of the William M. McElwain Company saved Eugene Richard and Miss Dorothea Malzair from drowning in the Merrimac River when the ice boat on which they were crossing the river was crushed by the fast moving ice in mid-stream. They were taken into a rowboat. Three persons were drowned recently near the scene of the accident.

EASTPORT DEMOCRATS NOMINATE LAMOND

Report Miss Wilson's Singing Voice Is Gone

MISS MARGARET WILSON.

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Reports that Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of the President, has lost her singing voice as a result of war work could not be confirmed today at the White House. Miss Wilson is a guest at the Grove Park Inn, Asheville, N. C., having been there for the past two weeks.

According to White House inquiries, Miss Wilson is enjoying a period of recreation. During the President's serious illness Miss Wilson remained continually at the White House, assisting Mrs. Wilson in her care of the President.

FOOD HOARDERS ARE SOUGHT

Palmer Renews Drive Against Big Profiteers Who Attempt to Keep Up Prices

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Attorney-General Palmer has renewed his fight upon hoarders of food. His special drive now will be upon big profiteers guilty of storing away huge quantities of foodstuffs, originally intended for export to foreign countries.

Mr. Palmer's attention was called today to the danger of speculators hoarding such commodities, which if allowed to be distributed through normal trade channels would cause a more pinched state of the union. A resolution for the creation of a fund for this purpose has been unanimously adopted by the carmen. A total of $20,000 will be entrusted to a board of trustees, who will invest the money as they deem best.

The department believes that if the law of supply and demand is permitted to operate without the manipulation of speculators, consumers soon will have the benefit of lower prices on meats and other commodities.

ALLEGED DESERTER IS WANTED IN BOSTON

William J. Griffiths, thirty-three, alias Frank Brown, is being held at Columbus, O., for the Boston police. He is wanted here for passing two checks on the State Street Trust Company, totalling $350.

Griffiths was arrested as a deserter from the army last October. Inspector Burke of the Boston police headquarters has left for Columbus with papers for Griffith's extradition.

SHIP IN PERIL ON 'HOODOO' DAY

Icebergs and Other Dangers Threaten British Steamship Tullamore

Friday, the thirteenth, is still a hoodoo at sea, whatever loss of prestige the popular jinx may have suffered ashore. The officers and crew of the British steamship Tullamore, which docked at the Hunter terminal on the Charles river, a week overdue from Liverpool, report that the fateful day, Friday, February the 13th, brought them a combination of perils.

The day opened auspiciously on the vessel was in the vicinity of the Grand Banks. All day the ship drove along on her eastward course, and as darkness fell the ship's company congratulated themselves on outwitting the "hoodoo." At 6 p. m. the lookout shouted "icebergs off the port bow." A moment later he sang out the warning "icebergs off the starboard bow."

Captain Williams stopped the ship and surveyed the scene. As far as the eye could reach north and south were great icefields with towering berge thickly scattered about. The Tullamore's course had taken her into the lane between the two fields. As night came on a fog in the gathering darkness the sky clouded and a thick snow began to fall. Soon this changed to fog and the officers were unable to determine whether the ice fields were closing on the vessel or not. At daylight a gale sprang up, opening a lane to the south, through which the big steamer went to safety.

Two days later the Tullamore on a more southerly course encountered four big icebergs and twenty-five "growlers." Wireless warnings were sent broadcast to officers of vessels.

PULP SHORTAGE MENACE TO MILLS

Pittsburg, Feb. 21.—Because of the shortage of pulp, the eight paper mills of Crocker, Burbank & Co. may be forced to close their way, and other paper mills in the city are facing a shut down, which can be averted only by new supplies of raw material. Douglas Crocker, assistant treasurer of Crocker, Burbank & Co., said today that his mills have just enough pulp to keep running until Sunday morning. Employes of the Fitchburg Paper Company are trying to release several carloads of pulp from the snow.

Campaign Cigar Run Out by Teacup

The teacup has replaced the campaign cigar in American politics. The rallying cry of the campaign manager has changed from a gruff "Say when" to a polite "Lemon or cream, please."

And it's all due to the refining influence of the women in politics.

That's the message brought back to Boston by the delegates to the recent suffrage convention in Chicago, where they were subjected to a teaparty barrage by candidates and the friends of candidates.

"It really was funny," said Miss Alice Stone Blackwell, describing the frantic eagerness of the politicians to "feed" the visiting women. Political parties fell over one another to do us honor. So many invitations to tea were read at the convention that the waitresses, and likely the women would burst into laughter as a new one came in."

Many of the leading presidential candidates "poured" for the suffragists, the number including Governor Lowden of Illinois and Major-General Wood, who was accompanied by Mrs. Wood.

"Campaign managers were plentiful and there was bitter partisan rivalry to see which could command the largest attendance at his social gatherings."

"The spectacle presented by some of these old-time politicians was comical in the extreme," said another member of the Massachusetts delegation. "They probably had not attended an afternoon tea in years, nor worn a frock coat in decades.

"Many a cigar campaigning had been red fire, campaign cigars, bands, and possibly drinks for 'the boys.' They must have suffered in torture of the eternally condemned, and if we admired them for nothing else, we admired them for their gameness."

Warmer Weather and Slush Predicted

Get ready for a Spring thaw.

Although today is comparatively cold, the weather man says that tomorrow will usher in moderate warmth, which will be attendant slush, flooded cellars and wet feet. He also comes to bat with the assertion that no storms are in sight, which is significantly odd for New England.

Trolley officials fear warmer weather as it means flooded rails and washouts and already a number of cars have been put out of commission by water and ice.

Many box cars on the tracks of the local freight terminals are frozen down and railroad officials assert that it will take weeks of warm weather to thaw them out.

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX On Life Beyond the Grave

Letters of Poetess Reveal "Communications From the Spirit World"

Return of Her Husband in Ethereal Form Brought Great Joy to Famous Writer

By MARCUS P. WHEELER.

Windsor, Wis., February 10, 1919.

Memories are very dear to a man who is old and has time to sit and think. To me the fondest of memories are those of my sister,

Ella. This fondness makes me jealous of them. And jealously I would guard them.

It was with this in view that I have decided to exercise my written privilege to give to the world these unpublished private letters from Ella Wheeler Wilcox to me.

My purpose is two-fold:

First, I would let the generations who are her reading public know my sister as I knew her. I shall use her letters to picture the many sides of a remarkable character which no publication ever has portrayed. In her own story of her life, published in the Cosmopolitan magazine, her inherent sweetness of character is lost in her modesty and appreciation. No other biographer really knew her. The sweetest memories of her life she kept—the good she did—her philanthropies—her godliness: these I would reveal through this publication.

Second, I would set before the world which has known her as a spiritualist—her true religious belief.

On every hand she has been criticised for her support of the theory of "life beyond the grave." Her consistency in the face of her determination not to enter the controversial field. Her belief had brought her happiness; that was all-sufficient to her. Argument was banal.

For many months she grieved over the loss of her husband, Robert, who died in 1916. Then came her new life with Robert (she says) returned to her in ethereal form. Her spirits rose. She was inspired. Smiles replaced tears. The sun arose shone for her. She was happy. Let the world think what it will.

This sounds much as if I were a spiritualist and proselyter myself. Not so. I did not hold to her belief in "life beyond death." Her letters, in which she vainly tried to "show me the way" will absolve me from any charge that I hold for spiritualism.

My purpose is to do is to let her letters tell her story of the great happiness she found in a shut down, which can be averted only by new supplies of raw material. Douglas Crocker, assistant treasurer of Crocker, Burbank & Co., said today that his mills have just enough to keep running until Sunday morning. Employes of the Fitchburg Paper Company are trying to release several carloads of pulp from the snow.

FARMERS NOW IN POLITICAL GAME

Going to "Eliminate" Presidential Aspirants Who Aren't Satisfactory to Them

By International News Service.

Washington, Feb. 21.—The American farmer entered the political arena today determined to be a big factor in the coming election.

A committee of seven, representing more than thirty farm organizations with 40,000,000 members, began its work of "eliminating" political candidates who are unacceptable to the farmer.

The committee authorized yesterday by a convention held here under the auspices of the national body of farm organizations was preparing a questionnaire to be sent to presidential candidates demanding to know how the candidates stand on questions which are of vital import to the farmers.

Those candidates who do not stand this test will be opposed by the combined farmer organization.

The "eliminating" committee is headed by C. S. Barrett, president of the National Farmers' Union.

MEMORIAL SERVICE FOR VICTIMS OF WAR

Memorial exercises in honor of those who lost their lives in the war will be held by William L. Harris Post No. 186, American Legion, Sunday at 3 p. m., in Abraham Lincoln School Hall, Arlington and Fayette streets. The program includes addresses by Governor Coolidge, Judge Lane, City Councillor David J. Brickley, W. T. A. Fitzgerald, Congressman Peter F. Tague, the poem by Rev. A. A. Berle, musical numbers, and presentation of war medals by Lieutenant-Colonel John J. Barry.

$300,000 OF K. OF C. CASH FOR SOLDIERS

The Knights of Columbus lent $300,000 to the United States soldiers in France during the war, and received all but $500 of it back, according to Lawrence O. Murray, overseas commissioner. The loss of that small amount was attributed to the fact that the borrower was killed in action. Government accountants examined the books of the organization and reported that the K. of C. finances were handled economically.

Marries Burglar She Freed From Prison

New York, Feb. 21.—In 1916, Miss Mary A. Fairchild, principal of Public School No. 3, Forest Hills, became interested in Henry C. Hoppe, then serving time in Sing Sing Prison for burglary. In May, 1917, she obtained his release. Now she has been married to him.

Hoppe is now a confectioner and is leading the life of a model citizen.

Five years ago Hoppe, twenty-seven years old, pleaded guilty to burglary. He received a sentence of from one to not less than three years and six months and more than six years.

At that time Miss Fairchild, formerly the assistant principal of Public School No. 3, Jamaica Plain, and greatly interested in prison welfare work, attended the trial. In November of 1916, she became interested in Hoppe. She went to Judge Rosalsky and learned the prisoner had been a porter at a saloon and then an electrician. Miss Fairchild told the judge she believed Hoppe's reform was due to the kindness of the judge to write to Governor Whitman.

Miss Fairchild also visited Albany in Hoppe's behalf. Her plea for the woman's parole was so effective that in May, 1917, the Governor commuted his sentence. Ten days later Hoppe and Miss Fairchild were married by the same judge who had taken Hoppe from the prisoner at a saloon and then as a former burglary charge.

The afternoon of February 8 they were married by Rev. B. C. Warren, pastor of the Eighteenth Street Methodist Church. Mr. Warren's wife and daughter witnessed the ceremony.

When seen at her school, Mrs. Hoppe said: "Mr. Hoppe and I were married February 8. We have nothing else to say about the matter."

B. U. Girl to Appear as "Joan of Arc"

DOROTHEA FALL.

Miss Dorothea Fall, daughter of ex-Mayor George H. Fall of Malden, is active in Boston University dramatics. Tomorrow evening she will impersonate "Joan of Arc" in the Union Congregational Church pageant, "America, the Land of Patriot Dreams," written and coached by Dr. Henry Alden Emerson of the B. U. English department.

About 250 students from Technology, Radcliffe, Harvard, New England Conservatory of Music and Boston University will take part in the pageant.

Miss Fall, February 27, will take a leading part in "Elisa Comes to Stay," in Jacob Sleeper Hall, for the benefit of the Y. W. C. A. social service work at the B. U. College of Liberal Arts.

COURTS UPSET 'DRY' CRUSADE

Prohibition Forces Alarmed by Large Number of Lost Prosecutions

Washington, Feb. 21.—Large numbers of acquittals in whiskey cases, reversals of convictions and the commissioner Kramer's drive to win popular support in the enforcement crusade.

No statistics were available at the bureau today but reports showing the percentage of acquittals in all courts of the country, but even fragmentary returns from State directors were sufficient warning that juries are sadly upsetting the calculations of prosecutors.

From some of the Eastern States, notably New York and Pennsylvania, enforcement officers reported that scores of cases, involving notorious instances of bootlegging and illicit manufacture of liquors, have resulted in the accused going free in the face of what appeared overwhelming proof of guilt.

Raitroads will not be allowed to ship whiskey and other intoxicants, offered for delivery after March 1, unless a permit is obtained by the proper operating officials from the Federal prohibition commissioner, it was announced today.

'HUMAN FLY' HELD ON SECOND CHARGE

Harry C. Ellamore, "the human fly," already held in $5,000 bail for a Roxbury burglary, was taken to Brookline Court and further held in $10,000 on the charge of assault with intent to murder Policeman Frederick Joseph J. O'Connell, and attempted breaking and entering. He was returned to Charles Street Jail.

'Widower' Must Pay $20,000 Heart Balm

New York, Feb. 21.—A verdict of $20,000 has been awarded Miss Virginia Eckhardt, twenty-one, of Detroit, in her breach of promise suit against Hugh J. R. Blakely, a wealthy exporter of this city. Miss Eckhardt came here in 1918 to compete her musical education. She met Blakely soon after her arrival and he showered attentions on her, giving her a diamond engagement ring. According to Miss Eckhardt Blakely represented himself as a widower with a motherless child. However, she declared, she saw him in a hotel with a woman, whom he admitted was his wife. Legal proceedings followed.

ELOPING GIRL IS FORGIVEN

Blessing Awaits Ida Gartz of Dorchester, Arrested in New York

Only the parental blessing is waiting for Ida Gartz, 18, and Harry Schaller, with whom she eloped, Mrs. Wolf Gartz, the girl's mother, said at her home, No. 130 Greenwood street, Dorchester.

The couple were arrested in New York city the bride accused of stealing a $400 coat from her sister and $100 belonging to her father.

The mother said that the father had recovered all of the property in New York and would not prosecute the young couple.

"We have forgiven everything," Mrs. Gartz declared.

Press dispatches from New York said that the pair were held without bail by a magistrate there for a hearing February 24 as fugitives from justice.

OIL BURNERS FOR THE EASTERN LINE

Indications along the waterfront point unmistakably toward a busy season for the Eastern Steamship Company. According to Calvin Austin, president of the line, will be less than eight steamships fully equipped with oil burners. These steamships probably will be assigned on the following runs of the service: The Portland and Belfast for the Bangor line, Boston to Bangor, connections at Rockland for Bar Harbor and all intervening lines; the Calvin Austin and Northland for New York by way of the Metropolitan line traversing the Cape Cod Canal; for St. John's the Dingley and possibly the Cobb; for Yarmouth the Prince George and Prince Arthur. In addition to these, the Portland Branch of the service will have the Ransom B. Fuller with possibly the steamship Bangor.

PAVLOWA DANCING GIRL IS DETAINED

New York, Feb. 21.—Jenina Michkowska, a beautiful young Polish woman, said to have been a member of Mme. Pavlowa's company of dancers, who arrived on the Lapland, was detained by Federal Inspector Allen and permitted to leave with the understanding that she should go to the home of a Mrs. Gilmore at No. 23 West Seventy-fourth street. She left, accompanied by a young British officer, one of several men who had called at the office of the station to intercede for her. The officer declined to give his name.

ANNUAL AUTOMOBILE OPENINGS ON WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY

DEALERS TO KEEP OPEN HOUSE

New Models Will Be Given a Preliminary Showing Previous to the Big Exhibit

By C. F. DONNOCKER

Following a custom established some years ago, most of the local automobile dealers of Boston will throw open their salesrooms on Monday, celebrating the annual Washington's Birthday openings for the display of new models previous to their exhibition at the Boston Automobile Show. Despite the fact that the weather conditions are far from ideal, indications are that this year will see many visitors at the various show rooms.

There are many interested prospective buyers who wait until this time to look over the various offerings, because they feel that the holiday affords them time to thoroughly inspect the mechanical features of the new cars.

A tour of inspection at both the New York and Chicago automobile shows revealed very few changes in body construction except a general tendency for more comfort and luxurious appointments, especially in the closed cars. The popular demand for all-season cars has forced bodybuilders to devote more attention to this style of body, and many manufacturers have so perfected the so-called "touring body" that it forms a practical and efficient body for stormy and Winter weather.

MAINE MAN JAILED IN WOOD ALCOHOL DEATH

Inspectors Catognaro, Crawford, Burke and Connolly arrested on a fugitive warrant, Constanzi Grinaldi, aged 50, a farmer of Livermore Falls, Me., who is wanted by the Maine authorities on a charge of manslaughter in causing the death of Thomas Dufresne, a woodsman, on February 16, by means of wood alcohol poisoning.

New Sunbeam Car Shown in Boston

The English "Sunbeam," a car made famous both in racing circles in this country and abroad under the hands of that well-known driver, Dario Resta, and also a car that saw active and enduring service during the great World War, was selected by Frederick J. Caldwell when he decided to make an addition to the Templar line in this city.

Mr. Caldwell, of course, was familiar with the racing records of the Sunbeam in this country and was also cognizant of the fact that the famous Sunbeam-Coatalen engines were in the R-34, the British rigid airship which made the journey across the Atlantic and back, when he decided that he wanted this car for Boston.

The chassis, which is on exhibition in the salesrooms at No. 1043 Commonwealth avenue, has so many examples of expert and finished workmanship that an enumeration is hardly possible. One glance at the wonderful motor and sturdily constructed chassis shows the class of workmanship which bespeaks long life and abundant service. Mr. Caldwell hopes soon to have a handsome body mounted on both the four-cylinder and six-cylinder cars.

The Templar line comprises almost every style of body from the four-passenger "sportette" and snappy runabout to the touring cars and closed models. Most of these will be on exhibition for inspection on Washington's Birthday.

PACKARD CO. HAS NEW FUELIZER

Will Exhibit Revolutionary Motor Device at Opening Next Monday

At the annual Washington's Birthday opening of the Packard Motor Car Company will be exhibited the new Packard Fuelizer, a device which it is predicted, will practically revolutionize the motor car industry by making even low grade fuels more efficient than the gasoline we are using today, according to Colonel J. G. Vincent, vice-president of the company.

The new device will be shown and demonstrated on the salesrooms floor of the Packard Motor Car Company next Monday. It practically does away with carbonization, which engineers have been fighting for years.

We all know that carburetor troubles have increased many fold since the grade of gasoline has been lowered and that motors carbonize more quickly, are less efficient and wear out in a much shorter time.

This is not due to a popular idea that cheaper materials are used, but that the improper mixtures are responsible in a great degree for most of these troubles, because of the low grade of gasoline in use at present, and the increase in demand for this fuel precludes the possibility of better gas for some time to come at least, so that this invention of the Packard Company is discounting future troubles of this sort. Many devices have been tried for "superheating" the mixture, and the fuelizer seems to be the right solution of the difficulties which have been encountered.

WORKS AUTOMATICALLY.

Improper carburetion means that raw gasoline which has not been consumed by the combustion in the cylinder seeps past the rings, destroying the lubrication of the piston and cylinder walls, and drops down into the crank-case to be forced into the bearings through the lubricating system.

All this means loss of power, undue wear and shorter life for the motor.

A good idea of the fuelizer and its work can be had from the following extract of a report sent out from the Packard Motor Car Company:

"It has been recognized by engineers that the solution of the fuel problem was to be found in the proper carburetion of available fuels, rather than any radical change in engine design. Various devices have been used for breaking up the wet mixture as it passed from the carburetor to the cylinders, but they have only moderately succeeded. The most common device has been the exhaust heated intake, which supplied the greatest heat to the charge at a time when heat was least needed and a minimum when the engine required the heat for efficient performance.

"In developing the fuelizer the Packard Company worked on the idea of applying heat automatically in just the degree needed. The appliance does its work automatically without involving a single moving part, and it requires no adjustment.

PREVENTS DILUTION OF OIL.

"The fuelizer consists of a small supplementary carburetor and a burning chamber where the gas from the little carburetor is burned. The chamber is situated on the intake manifold. When the gas enters it is ignited by a regulation spark plug and passes into the fresh charge going from the carburetor to the cylinders. The heat of the burnt gas changes the wet, poorly carbureted mixture to a dry vapor, which permits combustion with full efficiency when it is touched off by the spark in the cylinder.

"The appliance causes the entire charge to be 'exploded,' doing away with carbonizing, because the horsesense and similar less volatile matter is burned. Also, it prevents dilution of the oil in the crank case. Another advantage is that the engine, being supplied with a heated charge instantly on cranking, is ready for high gear work, regardless of the weather.

"The operation of the fuelizer will be shown on a car in the salesroom and it is possible to see just what is going on by means of little glass windows in the chamber of the device. One cannot appreciate how much gasoline is wasted until this operation is seen."

HORSE GIVES CLEW TO FROZEN MAN'S BODY

Caribou, Me., Feb. 21—Lewis Michaud, age sixty, a resident of Caswell, lost his life in the recent snowstorm and gale. He strayed from the road while driving from Caribou to his home.

The finding of Michaud's horse, nearly frozen to death, led to the search. The body was found near a barn on the Sawyer road.

DISPLAY LATEST DODGE CARS

Henshaw Motor Co. Opens New Home Monday on 25th Anniversary of President

More than the usual significance attaches to the Washington's Birthday opening of the Henshaw Motor Company, Boston. Aside from the display of the complete line of passenger and commercial cars built by Dodge Brothers, for whom this company is the dealer in Boston and a large part of eastern Massachusetts, it marks the twenty-fifth anniversary in the business of C. S. Henshaw, president of the company, and the beginning of the sixth year of his association with Dodge Brothers.

For the holiday opening every type of motor vehicle built by Dodge Brothers has been secured and also some types especially finished and equipped. There is also to be a large display of light-weight used cars, for which there is an entirely distinct department in the Henshaw building at Nos. 989-997 Commonwealth avenue.

VETERAN OF INDUSTRY.

Mr. Henshaw is the first man in this city to pass the 25-year mark of connection with the automobile industry. Speaking of the early days in the local trade, when he sold Detroit Boston cars made in France, Mr. Henshaw said:

"In those days we had no precedent to follow in planning our advertising, service and selling methods. We were trying to appeal to an entirely different class of people from those who bought bicycles, because the cost was so much greater, and it was a most difficult task to combat the prejudice of owners of fine horse equipages with a mechanical contrivance that frightened horses. Horse-drawn vehicles were sold without extensive advertising, and there were very few people who knew anything at all about internal combustion motors using gasoline.

"Cars that made twelve or fifteen miles an hour were regarded as dangerous. Boston had its first auto parade in 1902, and it was from the city to Harvard square and back. I was the manager, and the twelve machines that took part attracted more curiosity than a circus parade.

MADE 25 MILES AN HOUR.

"One of the earliest attempts to advertise the automobile was at a so-called tournament in Branford, Ct., in 1895. The affair was advertised extensively for those days, and drew several thousand people. The highest speed attained was twenty-five miles an hour. Some localities had a law prohibiting the use of automobiles or 'road locomotives' unless preceded by a flagman to warn pedestrians and drivers of horses."

LECHORN OPENS NEW SHOWROOM

The C. M. Leghorn Company, local distributor for the Liberty motor car, will open the doors of its new showroom at No. 880 Commonwealth avenue, Monday, Washington's Birthday. Work on the new building is practically completed and the Leghorn Company will soon be ready for the Spring business.

15-FOOT DRIFT ON BANGOR & AROOSTOOK

Bangor, Me., Feb. 21.—The Bangor & Aroostook Railroad is experiencing the worst blockade in its history due to the recent snow storms and gales. Train service on the road is only partially restored. A crew working at Dyer brook reports a drift fifteen feet high on the tracks at that point.

"PACKARD FUELIZER"

The Greatest Invention In the Automobile Industry Since the Twin-Six

Regardless of what car you may drive, you are vitally interested in eliminating the evil effects on your motor, of the present very low grade gasoline. Packard's latest invention is a leap far in advance of all progress in the automobile industry, towards making really efficient gasoline motor fuel out of the near-kerosene of today. The Fuelizer, by providing the intense heat needed to break up the liquid gasoline and vaporize it before it reaches the cylinders, does away with carbon, the business of grinding valves, cleaning engines, short circuiting of spark plugs, mixing of raw gasoline with oil in the crank case and all cold weather starting troubles. The apparatus will be exhibited under glass, so that every part is discernible while in operation, and you will be able to see just what happens when you start your motor, and speed it up, both with and without the Fuelizer.

Deep Snow Serves to Prove Hauling Dependability of the Nash Quad

Deep snow and other unusual weather conditions that threatened recently to paralyze transportation in Boston and throughout New England have served to prove the distinct advantages of the famous Nash Quad.

The Nash Quad, as vividly demonstrated to owners right here in Boston, delivered merchandise without difficulty during the recent snow storms that tied up traffic generally.

The reason for the dependability of the Nash Quad is obvious. Its two sets of driving wheels are absolutely assured power and the spinning of any one wheel is prevented because of its automatic locking differentials.

The Quad's rear wheels are always pushing and its front wheels pulling the truck ahead. This accounts for the demonstrated ability of the Nash Quad to deliver merchandise every day in the year regardless of the weather elements which at times tie up less dependable means of transportation.

We thank Nash owners for their confidence which prompted the selection of Nash trucks and we feel sure that satisfactory performance of these trucks will serve only to increase this confidence.

'RABBIT' MARANVILLE COMES TO TERMS AND SIGNS WITH BRAVES

HEARN TO PITCH FOR TRIBE

Southpaw Who Jumped Team in 1918 Returns; Prices to Be Regular This Year

By NICK FLATLEY

Rabbit Maranville's troubles with the Braves have been settled, the midget has signed his contract and forwarded it to headquarters, and will start South with the Boston contingent of the outfit a week from tomorrow.

Pres. G. Wash. Grant of the club showed that he is at least trying earnestly to get things lined up by ironing out all difficulties just as soon as he found out they existed, in reply to the Rabbit's returned original contract, the boss sent a letter, with different terms, and all was well.

The little fellow, who stands with the National Leaguers here as Babe Ruth did with the Sox followers, intended to come to Boston to have a personal confab with the magnate, but was held in Springfield by the illness of his daughter, Elizabeth.

Maranville has been working out in the gym during the Winter and announced by telephone that he is down to playing weight right now, and will report in better condition than he has for several years. As he puts it, he's going to get more money, and he's going to show that he deserves the same.

With his star shortstop out of the cold, the Brave owner will now turn all his batteries on two of the other clubs he is bickering with for another regular infielder, as well as other talent. While he isn't exactly optimistic about putting anything across, he hasn't given up hope by any means.

Bunny Hearn Signs Up to Pitch for Braves

Southpaw Bunny Hearn, who was with the Braves early in 1918, and fled into semi-pro ball before that season ended, has decided to come back under the big tent and has sent his signed contract in to headquarters.

Hearn is a smart left hander, and as the Braves are short of offside flingers, special efforts are being made to get him back in line. He pitched several good games in '18 and showed enough to make Manager Stallings believe that he would be a valuable bird to have around with a team that was traveling at a first division clip.

Those Braves could afford another southpaw in the sharp shooting department, but they're just as hard to discover as they are to hit.

No Small Change Juggling at Wigwam Ticket Windows

Prices will be boosted at the Brave orchard, come the season, as well as at the other ball parks, but the powers that be have decided to make the tax as low as the league law will allow. Boston and New York, in the National League, were against the advance, but were voted down.

Bleacher tickets will be fifty cents, pavilion seats will bring three-fourths of a dollar, while the grand stand assessment will be an even hundred cents. These rates will include the war tax, and will obliterate the jungling of small change at the windows and the consequent holding up of the crowds, when there is a rush.

Most of the other clubs have added the war tax to the minimum rate.

BIG GREEN ATHLETE ENTERS IN FIVE EVENTS

Dartmouth has sent in 52 entries for the Harvard, Cornell, Dartmouth track carnival in Mechanics Building, February 28, a week from tonight. Earl Thomson, holder of the world's record in the 70-yard hurdles and crack all-round athlete of the Green team, is entered in five events, the 40-yard dash, the 45-yard hurdles, the high jump, the shotput and the relay race.

Harvard Seven Meets Yale in Philadelphia

Montreal, Feb. 21.—Dartmouth, with eight points, led at the end of the first day of the Winter sports carnival at McGill University. McGill and Ottawa were tied for second place with four points each. The all round championship contest was won by Bowler of Dartmouth, with Tompkins and Ingalls of McGill following in the order named. Condon of Ottawa won the ski cross-country event, with Bowler of Dartmouth second and Glenn of McGill third.

ALL-STARS WIN IN OVERTIME

Art Donahue's Goal Tending Big Feature of Dartmouth Club's Defence

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

What would have happened to the Boston All Stars had Johnnie Murphy played against them or had the Dartmouth Club array boasted a substitute or two, is being discussed today by Greater Boston hockey fans who witnessed the evening's game between the Green graduates and the All-Star teams at the Ice Pavilion.

The All-Stars, by means of much re-substitution, kept an unfatigued forward line working against the unchanged attack of Dartmouth Club players, but despite this tremendous advantage, the Green once led and four times tied the score in the regular playing periods, forcing the All-Stars to extra periods to win the game. These extra periods found the All Stars fresh and the Green very weary, and changed a 5 to 5 tie to a 6 to 5 win for the All Star team.

To Art Donahue of the Dartmouth Club goes the bulk of the credit for forcing the All stars to an extra period battle. His goal guarding brought rounds of applause. The play of Small and Downing, with that of Skilton in the extra periods featured for the All Stars, while Tuck, Murchie Proctor and Paisley of the Dartmouth Club, showed flashes of brilliant hockey.

Old-Time Rivals to Meet on Ice

Old time high school hockey rivals who later have shone in the lineups of rival college and club teams will clash at the Pavilion tonight when the American Legion hockey teams of Arlington and Melrose Park stage the first of their proposed annual series of ice battles.

Arlington with such performers as Percy, Reycroft, Hutchinson, Lowe, Clifford and Patrick in its lineup will rule the favorite, although the Melrose army with Paisley of Dartmouth, Cochrane of Tech and other prominent sticksters may prove itself the superior before the game closes.

HARVARD SEVEN MEETS YALE IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Feb. 21.—This town is hockey mad today with Harvard and Yale playing the second game of their series in the Ice Pavilion this evening. The Crimson has annexed the first game, score, 8 to 4, and can bring the series to an end by winning. Yale with Carson and Captain Ingalls is figuring to win tonight, and clinch the series a week hence. The lineup:

HARVARD		YALE
Bacon, l.w.	r.w.,	Moffet
Snelling, l.w.	r.w.,	Carson
Emmons, c.	c.,	Ingalls
Emmons, p.w.	l.w.,	Lawrence
Walker, c.p.	p.,	Wilson
Holmes, p.	g.,	Walker

WILLIAMS TO COMPETE IN INTERCOLLEGIATES

Williamstown, Feb. 21.—Williams plans to take part in the intercollegiates in the spring of the year, Captain Brown is considering a third point winner in the distance runs. The last Williams man to score in the intercollegiates was "Polly" Leavett of Boston back in 1906. He came through in the hurdles and later won the same event for the American Olympic team at Athens. The track schedule:

May 1, Union at Schenectady; 8, Wesleyan at Middletown; 15, Amherst at Amherst; 22, New England meet at Boston; May 22, intercollegiates at New York.

Harvard Golf

The Harvard varsity golf schedule: May 3, Amherst at Boston; 8, Williams at Springfield; 13, Cornell at Boston; 14, Columbia at New York city; 15, Princeton at Princeton; 20, Dartmouth at Boston; 22, Pennsylvania at Boston; 29, Yale at Boston.

"PUTTING THE NEXT ONE OVER"
WITH "DUGS" DAER

IF an English walking suit is appropriate for Easter Morning, then an English running suit should be correct for G. Washington's Birthday. Old Pussyfoot Johnson is over in the monocle department now, trying to flatten the theory that the red nose never sets on the British Empire.

OVER on this edge of the works, the old boy has been successful. The loving cup is a lacrimatory and the stein is an urn. The booze industry is in the mitts of the pharmacists, and all the boys are going back to the pharm. But keeping the country dry is just as easy as pulling a silk shirt over a mad porcupine's back.

A DOCTOR'S prescription is the Open Sousame, pronounced with the oil on the first syllable, that unlocks the magic door. In the original barbecue, Sesame meant wheat. Sousame means rye. Both mean grain, only now we are being rubbed against it.

ANY TIME that you feel that you ought to feel sick, get clubby with the old family fizzician and he prescribes a little flat. Instead of writing out prescriptions, the docs now scribble out season tickets to the drug stores. A chain of apothecary garages is the new Underground Railroad by which the emancipated rum slaves go through all the gestures of escaping to Canada. A guy will grab a commutation ticket on the corner powder works and stagger back home with the old drink tickets looking like a cribbage board.

WHEN cashing a booze check, the druggist makes out the order in duplicate. One document goes back to the doctor, one to the druggist and the third to the Government officials. The Government keeps a list of every pint that is sold. A rummy is now a guy who looks upon the tape when it is red.

SOME YEARS AGO, the town of Tenafly, New Jersey, threatened to print a menu containing the names of all the bar rooms in town. It wasn't a big list, because Tenafly isn't a big town. No citizen on that roll of honor could grab a snifter in the village glue pot. That law still holds good. But while the honest villagers are sleeping, while the aldermen are snoring, Tenafly's hey rum hounds have been working on three formulas that are bound to revolutionize the red nose industry. Here they are, but don't tell anybody we buzzed you.

SIDE SWIPE: Side Swipe is a new intemperance drink that acts just the way it sounds. It's a secret recipe. Nobody knows how it is made, as it requires an autopsy to determine its ingredients. One drink is a collision. Two drinks are Gates Ajar. The third drink is unnecessary.

JUMP STEADY: Yes, bo. One swig of Jump Steady will crack any safe in the world. Should be taken with a slow fuse and plenty of paid-up Insurance. Wood alcohol is a chaser compared with Jump Steady.

WOLF SYRUP: Farmers used to use this stuff to poison rats, but now it's too good to waste.

SKATING TITLE TO McGOWAN

St. Paul Boy Runs Total Up to 160 Points by Winning Mile and Three-Mile Races

Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 21.—Everett McGowan of St. Paul, Minn., won the international outdoor ice skating championship, McGowan clinching the title by taking the three-mile race, having previously captured first place in the half-mile, mile and two-mile races and piling a total of 139 points.

PAUL DOYLE READY TO CHALLENGE MUGGSY

Paul Doyle of this city announced last night that he will issue a challenge to K. O. Muggsy if he succeeds in winning from K. O. Johnny Riley tonight at Marlboro. Doyle is in excellent condition, for he has worked hard for the past three weeks. He relies to meet Muggsy, and he believes that he can whip the East Boston welterweight, but in order to obtain recognition he realizes that he must dispose of the Rochester, N. Y., boy who has been a thorn in the side of the Marlboro Sportsmen's Club.

SIEGAL MEETS BROOKS IN HOLIDAY BATTLE

Nate Siegel of Revere and Terry Brooks, West End lightweight, will furnish the thrills in a twelve-round bout at the Commercial A. C. on Washington's Birthday. Siegal is being pointed to the New England welterweight championship by George Carter, while Brooks usually gives the fans plenty of action.

REAL FIGHTING AT C. A. C.

Joe Jawson Battles Vincent Martin Ten Torrid Rounds to a Draw

The Commercial Club fans saw ten rounds of very active milling when Joe Jawson of Milwaukee and Vincent Martin of Buffalo hooked up in the main wrangle at the evening show. The affair was declared a draw, which was correct. Both boys waded in from the start, and never eased up any through the journey.

Jawson directed his attacks to the body mostly, and scored frequently, while Martin used a facial attack that was mighty successful. Martin broke his right-hand early in the mill and consequently was handicapped quite badly.

Kay Lajoie took Sam Bell in the ten-round semi-final, and George Harrison was flattened by Greek Alger in the third. George hit the canvas just twenty-four times before he decided to stay put. Flash Rogers the most likely of the local preliminary boys, bettered Johnny Mario in the six-rounder that opened the program.

ST. MARK'S FIVE PLAYS NEPONSET WANDERERS

The St. Mark's Five will play the Neponset Wanderers tonight and the St. Mark's E. E. Five will play the Neponset 2d team. Both games will take place in the Dorchester High School Gymnasium. The St. Mark's 2d team will play the Norwood A. A. at Norwood.

STECKER WINNER OVER LONDOS

Champion Puts Opponent to Mat After Two Hours and 12 Minutes of Wrestling

New York, Feb. 21.—Champion Joe Stecker defeated Jim Londos, heavyweight wrestling champion of Greece, in a grueling bout lasting two hours and twelve minutes at the 71st Armory.

Both Greek full of pep and figuring that his one chance lay in constant activity, assumed the aggressive from the outset and strove by sheer strength and activity to overcome the handicap of his opponent's height, weight and constant threat of deadly body scissors and wrist lock.

Finally he got down his antagonist after an hour and twenty minutes of wrestling. Londos introduced roughhouse methods and seized every opportunity to muss up Joe's face.

At the hour mark Londos went to the mat with a thud when Stecker flopped him with a leg hold. He followed with a toe hold that the Greek wrenched free.

Later Stecker tried to work his famous scissors after getting an arm and wrist lock, but the Greek again wrenched free. Finally Stecker pinned Londos' shoulders to the mat with a head lock.

EAST BOSTON HIGH WINS TRACK MEET

East Boston High, with 51 points, easily outscored South Boston High, which was runner-up in the quadrangular meet, with a total of 23. Hyde Park, the third in team scores, with 22, and Brighton High, which gathered 14, in the running events, which were staged in the East Armory.

The winners led in every one of the four events, showing a well-balanced team, with a fine senior division group. South Boston High was the surprise of the meet, for the Hyde Park High was considered much stronger.

CORNELL ATHLETES TO BE BUSY TONIGHT

Ithaca, N. Y., Feb. 21.—Three sets of Cornell athletes have left here to participate in out of town athletic events. The Cornell basketball team headed for Philadelphia, where they will clash with the Pennsylvania five.

A party of six or more Cornell athletes go to New York to take part in the New York Athletic Club games in the 22d Regiment Armory.

TECH WRESTLING TEAM MEETS TUFTS TONIGHT

Tech's mat team takes on Tufts tonight in Walker gym. The engineers have developed the best wrestling team in the history of the game at the Cambridge institution. Last week they overcame Yale and in so doing administered the first defeat they have suffered in seven years. The following night they beat Brooklyn Polytech.

SNYDER TO BE READY FOR BOUTS IN FORTNIGHT

Barney Snyder, recently returned from Australia, has rid himself of his sea legs and will be ready to box in about two weeks.

He has been sparring at smokers occasionally, and in this way has limbered into shape. Two weeks hence he will be ready to meet Monty Wilde, if a match can be arranged at 115 pounds.

TECH TANK TEAM IN MEET WITH HARVARD

A swimming meet between Tech and Harvard is scheduled for Monday at the Boston Y. M. C. A. pool, the first event to start at 5 p. m.

Wesleyan Five Wins

Middleton, Conn., Feb. 21.—Wesleyan easily defeated Amherst at basketball, 48 to 15. The visitors were at no time formidable. The first half ended with the score 23 to 10 in Wesleyan's favor.

BIG MEET FOR SCHOOL STARS

Greater Boston Students Show Speed on Y. M. C. A. Track

The Greater Boston interscholastic meet takes place this afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. The entry lists promise many good races and the meet should eclipse the ones of former years.

The first event of the day was called at 1:45 when the first heat of the 50-yard dash was started. This was one of the features of the day with a number of stars in each heat.

The 300-yard run, the 600 and the 1,000-yard run was the order in which the other events were to be run off, while the field events were going on at the same time.

The points will be counted with five for first, three for second and one for third. Only three places to count.

The relay races also count in the scoring with five for the team making the best time, four and one-half for the next and so on down, which will make the relay races important in the scoring.

Boston College High, which was considered to have a favorable chance of piling up a large score, was handicapped by the absence of a relay team, being unable to get one tonight.

Two trophies were to be competed for, the Huntington School Trophy to go to the winner of the meet, and the Arthur F. Rice Trophy, which was to go to the Boston school winning the most number of points.

MANY N. E. COLLEGES ON RENSSELAER LIST

ATHLETICS FIRST TO START FOR SPRING CAMP

Philadelphia, Feb. 21.—Connie Mack and nine of his ball players were aboard the Florida special, for the new training camp of the Athletics. The Mackmen are the first big league baseball squad to start southward. Besides Manager Mack the party consisted of Catcher Eck Ard and Keefe, who were with Reading in the International League last year; Infielder Atlantic City; Martin, a New York Hater; Bill Gravell, of the Main Line League, who led a Virginia league batting last year; Catcher Cy Perkins, A. Schreiber, secretary, and Dr. Elling, trainer.

LIBERAL ARTS WIN IN B. U. BASKET BALL

College of Liberal Arts students of Boston University defeated the basketball team on to a 31 to 24 victory over the five representing the Department of Religious Education, in a hard-fought contest in the Rhoads Gymnasium. Lieutenant Chapman of the Department of Business Administration of B. U. was referee.

COUNTRY DAY GIVES B. & N. HARD FIGHT

Country Day ice hockey team, although beaten by Browne & Nichols, 4 to 2, in the Public Garden rink, put up a surprisingly fast, hard game. The result was in doubt until the very whistle.

Queen City A. C. Bouts

The Queen City A. C. of Manchester has arranged an attractive feature boxing card for its clubrooms February 24, Cleveland Johnny Downes will meet Chick Similey of Erie, Pa., in a 12-round battle. Both are training for the mill.

Winter Carnival at Belmont Club

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

The annual Winter Sports Carnival at the Belmont Springs Country Club on Washington's Birthday anniversary will include more events than ever before scheduled and will attract a large crowd. Sent on enjoying the present toboggan chutes, snow shoeing, skating, curling and skiing out of doors, and the dinner and dancing inside the spacious club house.

Skaters who hold titles will give an exhibition of their skill and there will be speed races for the experts and novices, with appropriate and prompted ices for the day, even if there is another storm or a thaw, as there is two feet of solid black ice and a sheep rutter at Belmont.

Curling teams will compete from Arlington, Belmont, Boston, Brookline, Cambridge, Lexington, Malden, Medford, Somerville, Wellesley, Watertown, West Medford and Winchester. The program will open with exhibition fancy and continental skating, begining at 10:30 o'clock.

ARMOUR DENIES DEMPSEY BET

Chicago Millionaire Angry Over Story That He Would Back Champion

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Denying in emphatic terms that he had ever written Jack Dempsey or that he was ready to back the American champion against all comers at all times, J. Ogden Armour put a quietus to a sensational story that was being discussed by the insiders of Chicago's sporting circles this week.

According to the story, Jack Kearns, manager of the world's champion, had written several of his Chicago friends that the champion was in receipt of a letter from the Chicago millionaire, in which Mr. Armour stated that he was ready to "back the American champion against all comers at all times."

"If have never written any letters, nor have I ever told Dempsey nor his manager that I would back them," said Armour today. "I am sure that they do not need my backing as they have plenty of that from other quarters. However, I do say that I know both Dempsey and Kearns, I have had no other connections with them."

HARVARD RELAY OFF FOR N. Y. A. C. GAMES

Five Harvard runners left Boston today for New York to take part in the indoor meet of the N. Y. A. C. A Harvard quartet, composed of Captain O'Connell, Alf Douglass, Joe McCarthy and Bill Goodwin will race Yale, Esmonde Doherty is first substitute.

ENGLISH SWIMMERS BEAT HUNTINGTON

English High merman defeated Huntington School, 35 to 15, in a swimming meet at the Boston Y. M. C. A. George Alger was English's heavy point getter, taking first place in the 50-yard and the 100-yard swim, as well as being anchor man on the winning relay quartet.

N. & G. TRACK TEAM WINS FROM ROXBURY LATIN

The Noble & Greenough track team defeated Roxbury Latin, 36 to 27, at Dexter Field, Brookline.

Ruth Plays Forward for Shawmut Five

Batt'ring Babe Ruth makes his last appearance in a Boston uniform tonight in an entirely new role. He will be a forward on the Shawmut Club basketball five, which takes on the Philadelph Legion team at the East Armory. The home run king will play a forward, and can be depended on to show the crowd something, as he is far from a novice at the game, and has been working out for the past week.

Babe will be surrounded by some of the best shooting talent in this part of the woods, and as another big attraction, Boston College and Tufts will stage basketball rivals, will have it out. In addition to all that, there will be dancing until midnight, after the athletes give up the floor.

DRONEY BOXES BRITT TONIGHT

Boys Meet in Twelve-Round Bout at Commonwealth A. C. in Scenic Temple

By JACK CONWAY.

Tim Droney, Lancaster, Pa., lightweight, will have Frankie (Young) Britt of New Bedford as an opponent in a twelve-round bout at the Commonwealth A. A. tonight. On paper it looks as though Britt is in for a busy evening.

Droney won a decision over Willie Jackson after twenty rounds of scrapping at New Orleans. He also bested Joe Tipitis and George Chaney over the six-round route at Philadelphia.

Britt is a natural fighter and possesses plenty of class. The New Bedford youth, however, has been campaigning steadily and is about due for an upset. At Lowell Thursday night Phinney Boyle held Britt to a draw. Droney believes he will do better and grab off the decision.

Johnny Sullivan, South Boston lightweight, will have Kid Francis as an opponent in the semi-final of ten rounds. Sullivan is one of the best of the local boxers while Francis has shown to advantage in New England rings.

Sullivan cannot afford to lose this evening as he has several attractive offers for bouts. Frank Tillo, North End lightweight, is among the boxers who are going to see Sullivan. When this pair last met Sullivan won a close decision. Tillo now wants to even the score.

Sullivan and Tillo were booked to clash at Framingham next Monday night, but the match has been called off. A difference in the question of weight is one of the things which always causes the matchmakers merriment when they try to sign up these boys.

BATTLING DOWNEY TO BOX WILLIE CREHAN

Battling Downey of Roxbury will not lack for opponents when he opposes Willie Crehan of the same district in one of the ten-round bouts at the Suffolk A. A.'s show next Wednesday night. Both have been training for the past two weeks, and declares he will try to score a KO. Crehan is a fair boxer and a hard battle. He refused to meet Downey at the Suffolk Club a month ago, as he wanted plenty of time on condition himself for the match. It is a safe bet to predict a fight, and is expected to attract a capacity crowd. The controversy between Downey and Crehan is the talk of the town, and it is said that the best place to settle it was in the ring.

DOUBLE WINDUP BILL FOR TRIPLE A FANS

The Armory A. A. has arranged a double windup for its show at the Grand Opera House next Tuesday night. Young Johnny Ertegund will have Young Bladen of Woonsocket as an opponent in the feature bout of ten rounds.

Young Chakas of Manchester and Johnny Williams of Dorchester will clash in another ten-round all-round scrap. These boys engaged in a great battle last week at the Commonwealth Club. There will also be two sixes.

MEMPHIS PAL MOORE FAVORITE OVER SHARKEY

Memphis Pal Moore has been made a slight favorite for his two six-round bouts with Jack Sharkey of New York which will be staged by the Pine Tree A. C. of Portland next Monday night. It is one of the most attractive of the holiday shows. Moore won international fame when he won a decision over Frankie Burns. He later lost a questionable verdict to Jack Britton, but Sharkey should beat Wilde in the latter's American debut.

KETCHELL AND WEST BOX 12-ROUND DRAW

Brockton, Feb. 21.—Jack Ketchell of Seattle and Chick West of Holyoke boxed a twelve-round draw at the Progressive A. C. Freddie Walsh of Weymouth and Mack Murphy fought eight rounds to a draw, Buddy Delano and Lawrence defeated Joe O'Connell in eight rounds and Freddie Rouillard of Quincy defeated Joe Downey of North Easton in one round.

MILLER BATTLES TRAVIS TO DRAW

Berlin, N. H., Feb. 21.—Charles "Kid" Miller of Roxbury fought a fast twelve-round draw with Steve Travis of Biddeford, Me., in the Granite State A. C. here.

LIMOUSINE GIRL AND HONEY GIRL HERE

Woods Flops Again.

Last season following the production of "Up in Mabel's Room," A. H. Woods, the manager who put the "prod" in theatrical production, announced solemnly that he was through with bedroom plays. The day following this startling assertion Wilson Collison, author of "Up in Mabel's Room," walked into Woods's office and laid a manuscript on his desk bearing the title "The Girl in the Limousine."

"What's it about?" asked Woods listlessly.

"It's mostly about a bed," confessed Collison, whereupon the manager lighted a fresh cigar. "The bed is used in the first two acts," continued the author, and Woods settled back more comfortably in his chair. "The hero is a young society man who is knocked on the head by a couple of footpads, dragged into a lady's boudoir, robbed of his valuables and of his clothing down to his nether garments and left beneath the bed of the lady who is fast asleep."

"Say no more," said Woods, adjusting his eyeglasses and picking up the manuscript. "Come back in two hours and I'll have a contract ready for your signature."

When Woods was reminded of his assertion that he would produce no more bedroom plays he blushed guilty and said: "It's not my fault. Blame the authors. They refuse to let me alone. Bedroom scenes have been my greatest temptation ever since I saw 'Mme. Butterfly' and 'The Girl of the Golden West.' And the only thing I can't resist is temptation."

Cruel and Abusive Treatment

Frances Demarest was prominent, not to say conspicuous, in the chorus strike. George Cohan was one of the leaders of the managers. The war is over and everybody got the jobs back including Frances, but in the last act of "The Royal Vagabond," which is in other respects, an unusually good show, Cohan permits Robinson Newbold to introduce about fifteen minutes of familiar variations on "The Flowers That Bloom in the Spring," stuff familiar to everybody who ever attended a Y. M. C. A. performances of "The Mikado." Somebody has to go on the stage with Newbold and ask him to do this thing, and sit through the specialty while all the other members of the company have retreated to their dressing rooms and stuffed cotton wool in their ears. Who is elected? Frances Demarest. .

Chorus Girl Sovlet.

Over in Berlin at the National Opera they call a meeting of the artists, stage hands, ushers, ticket sellers and janitors and decide what to put on by popular vote.

That stuff has reached our shores. When Ben Harris tried to engage a quartet of haughty beauties for the prominent and pivot positions of his chorus in "Honey-Girl" they insisted upon reading the manuscript, hearing the score and seeing the costume chart.

And so gowns are the right kind of chorus girls that they got away with it.

"We'll take no more chances unless warranted by our judgment," said Florence Ashton, the spokeswoman of the chorus soviet.

At that the chorus girl's judgment is as good as some producers, if what they produce is any criterion.

New Actor in Town.

Cyril Ring, who wears the Canadian colonel's uniform in "Longer Longer Letty," is an actor who came back.

Long before he was the company manager of "So Long Letty," paid off the actors, discouraged play producers and won money from John Luce, the press agent, in adjacent bowling alleys.

Apparently the salaries of actors have been mounting faster than those of managers, for the debonair husband of Charlotte Greenwood got sick of paying cheaptips four or five times what he earned himself and decided to get back into the game.

He had to go into training and remove a lot of stuff from around his waist, but he managed it and presented himself at Morosco's office to demand a juvenile job in the new Greenwood show. The elongated Charlotte, by the way, is Mrs. Ring, and does what Cyril tells her off the stage some times.

Morosco gave him the job, hired another company manager, Cyril paid his dues at the Lambs, settled up his bowling debts with George Hunt, the press agents, and started fresh.

Cyril is a husky looking blonde who looks like a half-back—he looked like a full-back last season. He was vaudeville with his sister, Blanche, got a job in the "So Long" company and married the star a chain-lightning courtship equalling anything shown on the stage.

Helen's Na Jobbed Her.

After the third act of "Bab" Monday night when the audience at the Hollis went wild over the brilliant acting of little Helen Hayes, George Tyler, the producer, dashed back to her dressing room and declared that Helen would be starred in the piece immediately.

In the actresses dressing room was her mother, Mrs. Brown, and Mrs. Brown amazed the manager by imploring him not to do anything of the sort.

"She's only an eighteen-year-old girl, and she's altogether too young to be a star. People will expect too much from her and her head might even get turned, though I don't think that's likely for she is very sensible if she is my daughter," declared the mother, "and it's I who say it.

"Let her have a few more big parts, anyway so that she will be firmly established."

The dressing room door opened and a thunderclap of applause was wafted in. Helen was still taking curtain calls.

"I'm going to feature her, anyway," declared Tyler, and dashed away before any other objections could be made.

That's why the "Bab" ads now read, "Bab" with Helen Hayes. If she had been starred it would be Helen Hayes in "Bab."

However, that even won't be long delayed.

Is That Why It's a Wyner?

Those who see Ed Wynn's carnival now see more of the star than they did when the show opened. Wynn likes to work and when he isn't in front he stands in the wings watching the other actors wondering if there isn't a chance to squeeze in a little more Wynn. He has worked up

BAB

WITH HELEN HAYES

And a Notable Group of Experienced Players

"Bab lives, moves and has her being in Helen Hayes," says Mr. Parker, of the Transcript, adding "she has enough sparkle and charm to carry her through many a year and into high favor in the American Theatre."

Mr. Crosby, of the Post, arises to remark that "Miss Hayes scores a big hit at the Hollis, and a new stage luminary has arisen."

As for Mr. Metcalf of the American, he states that "Bab charms her audiences."

Listen to the Herald Man: "Bab is impulsive, romantic, resourceful and lovable, and it would be difficult to imagine anyone more happy than Miss Hayes."

The Globe reviewer does not hesitate a moment, but says: "Practically every line is a laugh, and Bab is a charmingly merry comedy."

Katherine Lyons of the Traveler is convinced that "Bab is wholly delightful, and Helen Hayes is irresistible; have we another Maude Adams?"

Mr. Cushman of the Record tells the world that "Helen Hayes is a star of the first magnitude, and brought a host of curtain calls."

The Arctic Tern

ALTHOUGH the golden plover makes a longer continuous flight than any other bird, the Arctic tern travels farther, breeding far north. It winters on the edge of the Antarctic Continent, 11,000 miles away. Incidentally, it enjoys more hours of sunlight in a year than any other living creature.

April Folly

By Cynthia Stockley

A Brilliant New Film Romance With Marion Davies

Watch for This Story in Motion Pictures

"April Folly," soon to be seen in leading motion picture theatres, is a Cosmopolitan production, released through Famous Players-Lasky Corporation as a Paramount-Artcraft picture, under direction of Robert Z. Leonard. Scenario by Adrian Johnson.

AFTERWARD they would mooch home through the shimmering moonlight, heat, deliciously tired, wrapped in reflection and their jewels. Ghostie provided a perpetual jest by wearing a smart tiara hat with a high cerise crown.

She said it had once belonged to the fastest woman in South Africa, who had given it to her as a joke; but she did not mention the lady's name or say in what her "fastness" consisted. This was characteristic of visitors at Ho-la-le-la; they sometimes stated facts, but never talked scandal. When April asked them to call her by her own name instead of "Diana" they did so without comment, accenting her as one of themselves and asking no questions about England, the voyage or the Cape. The scandalous tragedy of the April fool had never reached them, and if it had they would have taken little interest except to be sorry for the girl.

In the Evening

In the evenings, when work was put away, Clive played to them on the 'cello.

"I was determined to have music in my life," she told April, "and as you can't lug a piano and musician all over the shop with you, I saw no way of getting it but to learn well enough myself."

And very well she had done it, though why she had chosen a 'cello, which also needed some lugging, no one knew but herself. Sitting with it between her heavy boots and breeched legs, the eternal cigarette drooping from her mouth, she looked more than ever like Galahad, her lithe, austere gaze seeming to search beyond the noble mountain-peaks of her own pictures for some Holy Grail she would never find. No complicated music was hers; just grand, simple things like Handel's "Largo," Van Biene's "Broken Melody," "Ave Maria," or some of Squire's sweet airs.

Night Views

Sometimes at night they went out, and climbed upon a huge rock that stood in the apricot orchard. It was big enough to build a house on and called by Clive her "counsel-rock," because there she took counsel with the stars on which things went wrong with the farm. Lying flat on their backs, they could feel the warmth of the day still in the stone as they gazed at the pulsing and silver canopy of heaven spread above them.

A week slid past, and April barely noticed its passing. No word came from the outer world. It was not the custom to read newspapers at Ho-la-le-la, and all letters were stuffed unopened into a drawer, in case they might be bills. Close friends were wise enough to communicate by telegram or, better still, dump themselves in person upon the doorstep. The only reason that April had been expected, and fetched, was that a "home letter" had heralded the likely advent of Lady Diana and given the date and hotel at which she would be staying. Home letters were never stuffed away unopened.

Late one afternoon, however, there was an unexpected announcement. The bush-me-keer-is bird began to cry in the orchard and Clive said it was a surer sign of visitors than any that came from the telegraph office.

"Tomorrow is Sunday. We'll have visitors as sure as gun," she prophesied.

Some Alaska Dishes

RECOMMENDED BY AN EXPERT TO HOUSEWIVES.

WHEN it was suggested to me that I go to Alaska and look into the manner of living there, I must admit I shuddered, or shall I more truthfully say—shivered? Not only because ice, cold and snow were always associated in my mind with Alaska, but I had allowed my idea of Alaska to be colored more than a wee bit by the shadow plays of the screen. And as the sky line of Seattle faded in the twilight I wondered if ever I did see real civilization again!

But one day, as we watched the giant icebergs reflecting themselves against a gorgeous Summer sky, there suddenly appeared Old Glory in all her splendor, and within a very short time we set foot on Alaskan soil.

There was something warm and cheery about the little log houses when you stepped inside. Always there were flowers in pots—nasties, geraniums, sweet peas. It is not easy in the north to raise garden vegetables, yet almost every little home had its garden.

In the first home I visited I was an unexpected guest; and yet without hurry or flurry my hostess prepared a meal I shall long remember. She let me watch her, and I'm going to pass along this dish to you. In Alaska they use moose meat. It is very like beef, and beef may be substituted for it.

ALASKAN POTLASH.

Moose meat, two pounds.
One green pepper.
One large onion.
Two canned pimientos.
One cup canned tomatoes.
Salt and pepper.
One-quarter cup pearl barley.

Wipe the meat with a damp cloth. Cut it into inch cubes. There should be some fat and some bone. Sprinkle the meat with pepper and salt, dredge with flour and brown in a little fat in the frying pan. Put into a cook pot. Rinse the frying pan with boiling water and add enough water to cover the meat. Bring to the boiling point.

When the water begins to bubble, add tomato, barley and other ingredients prepared and chopped into small pieces. Stew slowly, adding a little water if necessary. Stir occasionally to prevent the barley from sticking. When done the meat should be tender, but not broken, and there should be a thick and savory gravy. If the gravy seems thin, cook uncovered for a few moments. Serve in a border of mashed potato.

The moose took about forty minutes to cook. In general, allow two hours or more for any of the tougher cuts of beef. Slow cooking, cooking at a temperature lower than boiling point, will soften tough meat.

And then I went way back in the gold country. And the next memorable meal I had was at a prospector's cabin far up in the hills. He was the typical prospector, always hopeful, always cheerful. I am sure that if he doesn't strike ore some day his resourcefulness will always bring him a mighty good living. For here was a man, miles from his nearest neighbor, and he showed me the breasts of 200 wild duck which he had canned last Fall. Meaty breasts they were, too.

Of the parts other than the breast he had made a rich soup stock. A can of this chinned down with water and with some rice cooked in it gave us a delicious hot soup. He dipped the duck breast into fine white meal and fried it a golden brown in hot fat. And we had roast potatoes and salmon-berry jam and hot coffee—prepared by a man, almost a thousand miles north of Seattle.

And just one word about the housewives of Alaska. They are clean. No matter whether they have much or little, they are always arranging and rearranging their homes to make the very best of what they have. They plan for the season when it is impossible almost to get food. Yet their larders are never empty.

Why Colds Lead to Pneumonia

When a cold is neglected it attacks the lining of the lungs — then it's pneumonia. Father John's Medicine treats colds and prevents pneumonia because it nourishes the system and drives out the poisonous waste matter —any other way of treating a cold is likely to lead to pneumonia. Not a "cough syrup" or "balsam" depending upon dangerous and weakening drugs, but a food medicine and body builder.

"Miracle of Love" $1,000 Prize Winner

Miss Anna C. Dicket, 17 Years Old, of Pleasantville, N.Y., Lucky One

A SEVENTEEN-YEAR-OLD girl, Miss Anna Dicket, of Pleasantville, N. Y., wins the $1,000 prize offered by the Boston American by Cosmopolitan Productions for the best answer to the problem set forth in the motion picture "The Miracle of Love."

Thousands of answers were submitted by contestants all over the country, and Miss Dicket's was picked out by Cosmo Hamilton, author of "The Miracle of Love"; Fannie Hurst and Rupert Hughes as most deserving of the award.

Miss Dicket saw the motion picture, featuring Lucy Cotton, at The Rialto, New York. After pondering on the question of the Problem of Happiness, she decided that love, marriage to a paralytic and prison husband, and longing to respond to the call of her soulmate, the younger son of an old and proud family, she wrote the following answer to the question, "What would you have done in her place?"

Winning Answer

1—I would have transformed the Duke into a man. Only a real man. Disappointment in his wife, as well as his mistakes, made him cruel, hard-hearted and revengeful; but his better nature would have responded to proper treatment. By this I do not mean Helena's absolute surrender—the Duke was not deserving of that—but marrying him for money was an injustice to him as well as herself, and she at least owed him her companionship as well as courtesy.

2—Helena's attitude toward Clive cannot be criticised, for "all is fair in love and war," but if I had been in her place I would not have considered going away with Clive while I was married to another man. Even though Helena belonged to another, she had the greatest happiness that life can give, that of finding her "soulmate;" felt the joy of love truly given. This should have awakened sympathy for the man she married.

3—What would I have done in her place? I would have sacrificed my own happiness in order to remain loyal to my marriage vows until my husband was willing to release me in an honorable way, and THIS IS WHAT SHE WOULD HAVE DONE, for KINDNESS would have made him see his mistake and would have made the Duke want to see her happy. KINDNESS BEGETS and the transformation of this unhappy man would have been the true "Miracle of Love."

A Surprise

Miss Dicket, who is employed as a stenographer by a rug firm in New York, was greatly surprised to find she had won the $1,000 prize.

The contest ran simultaneously in the following newspapers: The Boston American, the New York Evening Journal, the Chicago American, the Los Angeles Examiner, the New York American, the San Francisco Examiner, the Chicago Examiner and Herald, the Atlanta Georgian, the Wisconsin News and the Washington Times. The job of picking the winner was a prodigious one and taxed the energies of a staff of a hundred.

Here is the winner of the $1,000 prize offered for the best answer to the problem set forth in "The Miracle of Love." The successful seventeen-year-old contestant, Miss Anna C. When a Girl Marries

New Serial by Ann Lisle

THEN I saw. I dropped on my knees at Jim's side and cried.

"Oh, Jimmy-Jay, I'm sorry," I murmured. "But I was so happy when I found out you hadn't stopped loving me—and so afraid it was too wonderful to last. Betty told me not to be hard. And my evidence. I thought it might seem as if I were crowing over you. I wanted things to stay sweet and dear like they were last night. And I almost was ready to sacrifice Phoebe. * * *"

Close to His Heart

Jim drew me close to his heart for a breathless instant. Then he lifted me to my feet and rose to face me.

"Anne, dear, I deserve this," he said quietly. "To lose your trust, and have you think I can't feel anything better than resentment for a moment. But I don't deserve to have you care the way you do. Only promise me you'll never stop. And I promise you I'll do more to deserve it. You're mine, girl—and I love you."

Jim drew me into his arms. I felt they would always hold me now. And I laughed a little, because it was better than crying. Then I crept close to Jim's heart, for I knew now that love does last. I vowed to tend the flame very tenderly so it might burn in our hearts forever. Jim kissed me over and over—very gently.

Then he put me away and faced me with that jaw and purposeful eyes. For one second I felt hurt that he could think of business. Then I knew I'd rather have him so—a man to do a man's work.

"About West," he said. "Quest this phase of it didn't strike you, but I'm glad it didn't, for it shows you ARE my 'lilac lady' and not the executive, Barbara Anne Lee. West has not only failed to induce the car he is to Phoebe. He has also double-crossed his partner and cheated the firm. This transaction isn't on our books, as you know. See what it means?"

"Yes, I replied breathlessly. "I see. What are you going to do?"

"I'm going to take care of him," replied Jim through clenched teeth. "I'll get his agreement on the wire now. He ought to be back by this time. And he and I are due for a show-down this very evening."

As Jim strode toward the telephone it rang. Impatiently he jerked it off the hook. But in a second his voice and manner melted.

"Hul-lo, youngster!" he said. "All alone? Well then you jump in a taxi and chase over here pronto. No back-talk. We'll look for you in ten minutes. So long."

Jim turned on the 'phone for a second, ratting the receiver hook up and down to attract central.

"That was Phoebe," he said.

"She's coming over to dinner. Now to call West."

"I hate to break bread with him, but he insisted that he had a heavy date tonight and the dinner hour was his only free time, so I hadn't any way out," explained Jim, turning from the telephone after a curt interchange of words with Dick West.

He folded the check which I had given Phoebo and she had endorsed over to West, slipped it into his wallet, took me in his arms for a moment and limped out. That he was going to do with West I couldn't imagine, yet I found myself waiting for Phoebe eagerly, certain that I had good news for her—that I must tell her of Neal's engagement.

"Dick West is back," said Phoebe simply.

"Dick West?" I said smiling at her as I lifted off her hat and fluffed up her bright hair. "I know he's returned. But he doesn't count. Jim has gone to dispose of him."

A Hard Question

"Jim?" repeated Phoebe in a numb voice. "What can Jim do? Dick West made me meet him for tea. He started off telling me that two could live so much cheaper than one—so he thought we ought to get married. I kept saying I never would. But he wouldn't listen. After a while he said the business wasn't paying very well and that he was fed up. I knew that meant he wanted to have his money."

"Jim will give it to him tonight," I said positively. "Come now, dash a little cold water on your eyes. I've a smart new waitress and she mustn't see that I'm soresome to my guests that they cry at having to be alone with me."

The minute dinner was over I led Phoebe to the living-room, plumped her down on the couch with a box of chocolates at her side and started my campaign:

"Now we can talk. First let's tackle Dick West and dismiss him for all time."

"I wish we could," said Phoebe, smiling wistfully.

"Well, we can." I persisted, but Phoebe interrupted in a tone of worldly wisdom that didn't become her at all:

"Paying off Dick West doesn't matter, Anne. That doesn't wipe out the fact that I let him pay for my stocks and once owed him a thousand dollars. If people want to talk they can, just the same."

"Who says so?" I demanded, furious that Phoebe should have just the ugly point of view I had been determined to spare her.

No Way Out

"Mr. West," returned Phoebe simply. "He says he'd never have let me get into such a position if he'd known that I wasn't going to marry him. He says he thought we were engaged and that he can't understand me jilting him just because he hasn't made money in his investments. It sounds as if I were an awful person—a regular vampire, Anne."

Household Suggestions

The following way of cooking filleted fish is a change from the stewed fish. Put the fillets in a fireproof dish, cover with milk, add a small piece of margarine, and cook in a moderate oven until the fish is done. Have ready a second fireproof dish containing a layer of mashed potatoes. Lift out the fillets on a fish slice, and place over the potatoes. Pour the milk in which they have been cooked into a saucepan, thicken with a little flour, add a little grated cheese, pepper and salt. Pour this sauce over the fish, sprinkle a few bread crumbs on top, and brown in a few minutes. If cheese is not liked, this dish can be served with egg or parsley sauce.

When moths have got into a piano the best means of ejecting them is to make an injection of turpentine, benzoline and oil of lavender and squirt this inside the instrument by means of a scent spray or any small syringe. Use seven parts of benzoline to one of turpentine, and add a few drops of the lavender. One drop to each ounce will be ample.

The Cinema Murder

A Modern Mystery Screen Serial of Love and Intrigue

By E. Phillips Oppenheim

THE door closed behind him. They heard the shrill summons on the bell, the arrival of the lift, the clanging of the iron gate, and its subsequent descent. Then Beatrice turned her head. Phillip was still smoking serenely, standing with his back to the mantelpiece, his hands in his pockets. She rose and threw her arms around him.

"Philip!" she cried. "Why, you are wonderful! You are marvelous! You make me ashamed. He was only for a moment that I lost my nerve, and you saved me. Oh, what idiots we were! Of course he meant to warn me—that's why he told me he was going to Chicago. The beast!"

"He seems to have got hold of the idea all right, doesn't he?" Philip muttered.

"Pooh!" she exclaimed encouragingly. "I know a little about the law—no doubt. He hasn't any proof—he never can have any proof. No one will ever be able to swear that the body which they picked out of the canal was the body of Douglas Romilly. There wasn't a soul who saw you do it. I am the only person in the world who could supply the motive, and I—I shall never be any use to them. Don't you see, Philip? . . . I shall be your wife, a wife can't give evidence against her husband! You'll be safe, dear—quite safe."

He withdrew a little from her embrace.

"Beatrice," he reminded her, "there is another tragedy beyond the one with which Dane threatens us. I do not wish to marry you."

She suddenly blazed up.

"Because—?"

"Not because of any reason in the world," he interrupted, "except that I love Elizabeth Dalstan."

"Does she wish to marry you?"

Suddenly Changed

He was suddenly an altered person. The cause of his confidence seemed to desert him. He shook his head doubtfully.

"I am not sure. Sometimes I fancy that it is only a great kindness of heart, an immense sympathy, a kind of protective sympathy, which has made her so good to me."

She looked at herself steadily for a moment in the mirror. Then she pulled down her veil.

"Philip," she said, "we find out the truth about you. We are up against one like this. I used to think I could live alone, I can't. Whatever you may think of me, I was fond of Douglas. It wasn't only for the sake of the money and the comfort. He was kind, and in his way he loved me. And then, you know, misery didn't agree with you. You were often, even in those few hours we spent together, very hard and cold. Anyway," she added, with a little tightening of the lips, "I am going to get my money back, and no one can stop that. You may here and think it over. It would be better to marry me, Philip, and be safe, than to have the fear of that man Dane always before you. And wait—wait till you see me when I come back!" she went on, her spirits rapidly rising as she moved towards the door. "You'll change your mind, Philip. You were always so impressionable, weren't you? A little touch of color, the perfume of flowers, a single soft word spoken at the right moment—anything that took your fancy made such a difference. Well—just wait till I come back!"

She closed the door. Philip heard her descend in the lift. He moved to the window and watched for her on the pavement. She appeared there in a moment or two and waited whilst the boy whistled for a taxicab, her face expectantly upraised, one hand resting lightly on her bosom, just over the spot where her pocket-book lay.

CHAPTER XVI.

PHILIP was still gazing into vacancy and smoking cigarettes when Elizabeth arrived. She seemed conscious at once of the disturbed atmosphere. His hands, which she held firmly in hers, were as cold as ice.

"Is that girl going to be troublesome?" she demanded anxiously.

"Not in the way we feared," he replied. "All the same, the plot has thickened so far as I am concerned. That fellow Dane has been here."

"Go on," she begged.

"He laid a trap for us, and we fell into it like the veriest amateurs. He let Beatrice think that he had gone to Chicago. Of course, he did nothing of the sort. He turned her loose to come to me, and he had us watched. He knew that we spent last evening together as old friends. She was here in my rooms this morning when he arrived."

"Oh, Philip, Philip!" she murmured. "Well, what does he suspect?"

"The truth! He accused me to my face of being Phillip Romilly. Beatrice did her best but, you see, the position was a little absurd. She denied strenuously that she had ever seen me before, that I was anything but a stranger to her. In the face of last evening, and his finding her here this morning, it didn't sound convincing."

"What is Dane going to do?"

"Heaven knows! It isn't his affair, really. If there were any charge against me—well, you see, there'd have to be an extradition order. I should think he will probably lay the facts before Scotland Yard and let them do what they choose."

She made him sit down and drew a low chair herself to his side. She held his hand in hers.

"Philip," she said soothingly, "they can't possibly prove anything."

"They can prove," he pointed out, "that I was in Petton Magna that afternoon. I don't think any one except Beatrice saw me start along the canal path, but they can prove that I knew all about Douglas Romilly's disappearance, because I travelled to America under his name and with his ticket, and deliberately impersonated him."

"They can prove all that," she agreed, "but they can't prove the crime. And that's the only person who could do that."

"She proposes to marry me," he announced grimly. "That would prevent her giving evidence at all."

Elizabeth suddenly threw her arms around his neck and held her cheek to his.

"She shan't marry you!" she declared. "I want you myself!"

"Elizabeth!"

"Yes, I have made up my mind, Philip. It is no use. The other things are fascinating and splendid in their way, but they don't count, they don't matter. I don't care tinsel, dear, and I don't want tinsel—I want the gold. We'll face this bravely, wherever it leads—bravely, however deep down, and then start again."

"You know what this means, Elizabeth," he faltered. "That man Power—"

She brushed the thought away.

"I know. He'll close the theatre. He'll ruin us all in a way. That doesn't matter. The play is over. It would be better to marry me, Philip, and be safe, than to have the fear of that man Dane always before you. And wait—wait till you see me when I come back!" she went on, her spirits rapidly rising as she moved towards the door. "You'll change your mind, Philip. You were always so impressionable, weren't you? A little touch of color, the perfume of flowers, a single soft word spoken at the right moment—anything that took your fancy made such a difference. Well—just wait till I come back!"

She closed the door. Philip heard her descend in the lift. He moved to the window and watched for her on the pavement. She appeared there in a moment or two and waited whilst the boy whistled for a taxicab, her face expectantly upraised, one hand resting lightly on her bosom, just over the spot where her pocket-book lay.

How I Relieved My Rheumatism

by PETER SAVALA

I threw away my crutches in seven days, in two months I was a well man —and I have never had a twinge from rheumatism since. This is what the remedy, which I obtained from my uncle in Greece, did for me.

I went home to Greece crippled, broken in spirit—sick. I returned a strong man in two months, absolutely free of every trace of rheumatism.

The whole story of my life in America—how I became crippled with rheumatism and how I found the treatment which upsooted the disease and drove it out of my body—I will gladly tell you FREE.

It makes no difference how swollen or distorted your joints may be; how severe the pain; or how discouraged you are; I feel sure that I have the means of helping you to find relief in a few days and a lasting relief in just a few weeks.

Just write me personally. Say—"Tell me how you relieved your rheumatism and how I may relieve mine."

Many People are Asking "What is 'The Doctor in Candy Form'?"

Remarkable Features of Antiseptic-Laxative-Candy Explained

So many people are asking about "The Doctor in Candy Form"—what it is—what it does—that a full explanation of this modern, health-protecting laxative and antiseptic is here given.

"The Doctor in Candy Form" is the trademarked slogan of Partola candies. These candies have the delicious appetizing taste and pleasing odor of after-dinner mints. They have no suggestion whatever of medicine. For this reason they are loved by young and old—especially by the little ones.

Partola candies are a double-purpose laxative and antiseptic. They do all that any laxative can do, and do it gently but effectively. In addition, they tend to disinfect and sweeten the digestive tract and help give protective action against the disease germs which medical experts say breed there by millions.

All good druggists sell Partola candies in 25c, 50c and $1.00 boxes. There is nothing "just as good" or "just the same" as "The Doctor in Candy Form." So do not accept substitutes by ordinary, old-fashioned laxatives. Insist upon the genuine Partola.

MOZART PLAYED AT SYMPHONY

Gilbert's Poetic Melody, Founded on a Southern Slave Revel, Delights

Of unusual interest to music lovers was the distinctive program offered yesterday afternoon by the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Mr. Monteux conducting. Mozart's "Symphony in G minor," well known to many from frequent performances in Boston, was received enthusiastically.

A symphony for violin and orchestra by the Spanish composer, Edouard Lalo, gave full scope for the notable playing of Fredric Fradkin, concert-master of the orchestra. The composition is rich in fanciful, rhythmic movements and in phrases which require delicacy and firmness of tone. Mr. Fradkin displayed a technique which mastered the most intricate and bewildering passages, and his sympathetic interpretation of the charm and languorous grace of the symphony was keenly appreciated by the audience. Mr. Fradkin was recalled many times.

The third number was in many ways the feature of the programme. "The Dance in Place Congo" is a modern American composition by Henry F. Gilbert, a symphonic poem founded on a description by George W. Cable of a Louisiana slave-revel. It is distinctively American music, in that it is based upon a primitive and barbaric, although essentially native expression of the art of the negro races in the South. The music has a wild, syncopated rhythm, startlingly akin to the "jazz" of modern dances, with an elusive and haunting melody which rises insistently above the clash and din of the louder instruments.

The unrestrained frenzy of the "Bamboula," a barbaric negro slave-dance, gives way to interludes of more harmonious passages, chanted with the swing of an old revivalist hymn, and then rises again in chaotic and blaring measures.

The audience showed a keen interest in the music, after the first shock of the inrouds of "jazz" into a Friday afternoon concert. They applauded a bit breathlessly after a particularly spectacular and discordant finale, and recalled Mr. Monteux several times.

BOSTON AMERICAN LIMERICK CONTEST $250 EVERY DAY

For the Best Last Lines

Mary Sullivan

55 Fruit Street, Worcester, Mass.

will be paid $150 for the "best last line" of

LIMERICK No. 14

The completed Limerick reads as follows:

There was a young fellow named Miller,
Who tried to become a distiller,
He had tubes of all sorts,
And copper retorts,
Bottles galore, but no filler.

Miss Mary Sullivan is 24 years old, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sullivan of No. 55 Fruit street, Worcester. She is employed as bookkeeper in the office of the Gorman-Leonard Coal Co., and is one of the most popular of the younger social set of that city.

She was graduated from the Classical High School and later from Post's Business College. She declares that she has been a reader of the American since she knew how to read, and although she had tried her luck in many contests, she never won a prize before.

4 next "best last lines" of No. 14 Limerick were written by RICHARD S. CARR, 37 A St., Manchester, N. H.

JAMES A. GALLAGHER, 107 Broad St., Bangor, Me.
MRS. T. A. CAMPBELL, 58 Evergreen St., Rutland, Vt.
NELLIE F. MORRIS, 50 Bushee St., Attleboro, Mass.

Each of whom will be paid $25.00 by the Boston American.

RULES:

1. Friday, January 30th, the Boston American commenced publication of a daily incomplete Limerick, and $150 will be paid for the "best last line" sent in by readers completing the Limerick. The Numbers and Prizes beginning with Limerick No. 2, a total award of $250 will be given; first award, $150, and for the next four best last lines, $25.00 each will be given. In the event of more than one person sending in the same "best last line," similar awards will be made. No one is barred from participating in the contests of the Boston American and their families, who are absolutely barred. No one may send more than one "best last line" to each Limerick.

2. The blank printed herewith is for the convenience of the readers and the Editors, but you do not have to use this particular blank.

3. Each Limerick appearing in the Boston American will have a number, and the "best last line" must be sent in a sealed envelope, by mail, addressed to "Boston American Limerick Department," P. O. Box 238, Boston 8, Mass. On the envelope containing the "best last line" must be written, also, the Limerick No. ——. This is most important.

4. All "best last lines" must be received at the Limerick Department by 12 o'clock noon, four days after publication of each Limerick, and awards will be made in the Boston American Wednesday after publication of each Limerick.

5. The Boston American reserves the right to make any change in or addition to those rules that may be deemed necessary to fairly and properly conducting the proposition, and the decision of the Boston American Limerick Editor on any question which may arise will be absolutely final, and the entering of a participant in a complete acceptance of all conditions and regulations now made or to be made.

Boston American Limerick Editor,
P. O. Box 238,
Boston 8, Mass.

Stocks Rule Higher in Both Marts at the Close

CARRIERS LEAD IN NEW YORK

Interest Turns to These Issues Before the Market Closes

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks ruled higher in New York at the close, but there was profit taking in the second hour and final prices were below the morning highest. Rails became the leaders in the last half of the session, with New Haven and Rock Island advancing the most. At its highest New Haven showed more than three points gain. Steels were mixed. Coppers improved, while oils and motors suffered from realization selling. They closed below their best figures. The 6 per cent. call rate holds over until Tuesday. Foreign exchange rates were lower at the opening, when demand sterling declined 2% cents to $3.41¼. Before the morning was over it was down to $3.39¾. Francs touched 12.87 and lire 13.82. Marks were quoted at .0107.

The market was active, transactions for the morning totalling 399,000 shares. For the whole day sales totalled 4,647,200. In the bond market sales for the day amounted to $7,-479,000 and for the week to $66,-868,000.

IRREGULAR AT OPENING.

Irregularity marked the price movement at the opening, and while small gains prevailed among the leaders on first sales they were not long retained as a rule. A lower level was reached within a few minutes and the market had a weak tone at the end of half an hour. After a halt some hardening developed, which began which took prices back to the earlier plane or higher. At the end of an hour the list still looked irregular, but the market could be called quite firm. Steels were weak for the first half of the session, but motors and oils showed strength. Shipping shares had no class and rails were fairly active, but wavered until mid-morning. Then they improved. They continued active.

AMERICAN WOOLEN STRONG.

Coppers were too dull to be classed as either weak or otherwise. American Woolen common advanced the most of any stock during early trading. Before 11 o'clock it was up more than five points, the interest here being the leader in the auto group. Mexican Petroleum led oils upward. Crucible and Republic were reactionary steels. Trading was professional to a decided degree. The movement of stocks was the result of a reflection of week-end readjustments by regular operators. Nothing new developed tonight that would be likely to affect securities much. The price range was narrow and the market had usual Saturday characteristics.

American Cotton Supply

It is figured that the cotton supply for the 1919-1920 season approximates 15,118,832 bales lint and 1,537,490 bales of linters. The estimate is based upon ginning figures to January 19 and upon the Census Bureau's calculation on a carryover on August 1 last of 4,286,785 bales lint and 368,897 bales of linters.

Value of Cottonseed Crop

The value of last year's cottonseed crop is placed at $527,000,000 by the bureau of census estimate of the department of Agriculture. The higher price obtained gives the 1919 crop 7 per cent more value than cottonseed produced in 1912.

New Haven and Boston & Maine Feature Boston Trading

Opening irregular, the Boston market showed no change as to trend during the first hour, except that it grew a little stronger. At the start most issues were a little above the final closing figures. The leaders in activity at the outset were Carson Hill and Root & Van Dervoort. Before the morning was over Boston & Maine and New Haven became the features. There was not so much trading in coppers. New England rails benefitted by the advance in New Haven at New York. The carrier began here with a point loss and by the second hour had more than recovered, having made about two points gains. Boston & Maine went up more than a point, but was on sales.

Carson Hill gained a fraction and Root and Vandervoort was up more than a point before the market was over. In the second hour Parish and Bingham advanced three points on each stock. Gray & Davis climbed more than one. All the active auto accessories were irregular and showed little change as to prices. Calumet and Arizona, on a solitary transaction, sold more than a point above its previous closing price. Other strong issues were Mexican, United Fruit and Clinton Weight.

Among issues to recede a point were Chinese, Nevada Hills. Smaller losses were sustained by Copper Range, Isle Royale, Mayflower-Old Colony, United Drug common, Swift & Co., Mexican Investment and North Butte. The market was strong in the second hour.

At the close the market was quite strong. Carson Hill had lost its gain and was showing a loss.

TIP TOP FEATURES CURB.

On the Curb Tip Top was the feature, with Boston first in lively sale showing a comparatively large loss. It ranged from 2¼ at the highest down to 1¾ at the low and closed at 3 and at a point decline. It rallied in the last few minutes. Transactions in this stock totalled nearly 57,000 shares. Other active issues were American Oil, Extensions, Crystal Gulfport, Red Warrior and Silver Reef.

Among those to close with gains were Atlas Tack, Arizona Silver, Stella Divide, Iron Cap and Verde Mines.

Weak issues included Gillilland, Simon Petroleum, White Oil and Silver Reef.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES.

At the end of 1919 St. Mary's Mineral Land Co. had $1,000,000 of bonds and $250,000 of stock outstanding, the latter having been increased from $200,000 during the year. The Utah Apex Co. reported total operating profits of $2,256,000, deducting costs of $923,838, derived from the sale of 1,984,239 tons of ore containing 1,000,000 ounces silver and 2,237 ounces gold; and 180,715 ounces silver.

HIGH RECORD YEAR FOR JOHN HANCOCK LIFE

New business written for 1919 by the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co. established a high record, far exceeding that for any previous year, it was announced by President Roland O. Lamb in the company's fifty-seventh annual report that the total of new-paid insurance for the year amounted to over $253,000,000, and the insurance in force was increased during the year by over $171,000,000. The total insurance in force on December 31, 1919, was $1,252,806,587.

The gross admitted assets reached the total of $186,562,667.02; the policy reserves and sundry liabilities, $177,-186,659.17, leaving a surplus of $9,376,007.85 plus assets for emergencies amounting to $3,707,007.85. This represents an increase in assets of $25,000,000 for the year, and in surplus or unassigned funds of $3,703,097.53.

These figures are evidence not only of the effectiveness of the entire organization, but of the great and increasing demand for life insurance. The John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company is among the conservative forms of life insurance at the lowest rates consistent with safety. Policies are issued to meet practically all situations at a cost to suit all purses.

Novel Photoplay Was Filmed in Arctic

Scene from "Back to God's Country." To be shown the coming week at Gordon's Olympia Theatre.

Heralded by exceptional tributes from critics, who declare it to be a most novel photoplay, "Back to God's Country," adapted from James Oliver Curwood's celebrated magazine story, "Wapi, the Walrus," will be shown next week at Gordon's Olympia.

Probably no person alive has the knack of writing on the psychology of the relationship between animal and man that characterizes the literary work of Curwood. And in his picture, which was supervised by himself in the Arctic regions in a temperature of 62 degrees below zero, a faithful attention to detail has made this photoplay far more vivid than his story.

"Back to God's Country" is based essentially upon the theme that kindness to animals results in rewards, and generating that kindness to the giver, whereas cruelty and torture serve to incite an animal to fiendish savagery.

SCOLLAY SQ. OLYMPIA

A story of the underworld and the overworld is graphically presented in the screen version of LeRoy Scott's "A Daughter of Two Worlds," starring Norma Talmadge, to be exhibited at the Scollay Square Olympia next week.

As a girl whose family name is tainted with an unsavory reputation, Jennie, the part taken by Miss Talmadge, rises from her environment as the daughter of Black Jerry Malone, keeper of an underworld cabaret, to a high place in society.

UPHAMS CORNER STRAND

The willingness of a girl to sacrifice wealth, comfort and luxury to which she had been accustomed in order to live with her father, although his abode was a tenement house, forms the central theme in "The Hoodlum," starring Mary Pickford, produced by her and which will be seen next week at the Upham's Corner Strand.

MEET TO RAISE FUNDS FOR WOMEN'S DIOCESAN

District chairmen and all women interested in promoting the success of the bazaar to raise funds for the establishment of a diocesan for Catholic women are invited to attend a meeting at Notre Dame Academy, Fenway, this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Preliminary information for conducting the work of the bazaar will be given and discussion by the chairmen relative to their organizations will follow.

HEIRS

The war is over and has made many new heirs. You may be one of them. Investigate. Many now living in poverty are rich, but don't know it. Our new 1920 library cloth-bound index, entitled "Missing Heirs and Next of Kin," listing 1772 to recent date, alphabetically arranged, gives the authentic facts of unclaimed estates and heirs wanted and advertised for in America and abroad to claim fortunes. Also contains chancery courts of England and Ireland lists and Bank of England unclaimed dividend lists; thousands of names in book. Yours or your ancestors names may be among them. Send $1 (one dollar) at once for 400-page, cloth-bound book. Established 1911.
